Republican National Ticket.

FOR PRESIDENT,
JAMES G. BLAINE,
OF MAINE.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT,
JOHN A. LOGAN,
OF ILLINOIS.

Republican State Ticket.

FOR CONGRESSMAN-AT-LARGE,
GEN. E. S. OSBORNE.

EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

THE Harrisburg Patriot story will draw a good many votes to Mr. Blaine.

WE would be pleased to have Mgr. Capel try his pursuasive powers on Bob Ingersoll.

THIS is the way a Detroit husband signed the pledge; "I HEIRBY give up THE LICKER. MYKE FINN.

IT is suspected in some quarters that instead of a prayer, the Chicago Convention will be opened by a letter from Mr. Tilden.

THE Lancaster New Era declares that Lancaster county will give Blaine the largest majority she has ever cast for a Republican candidate.

NUMEROUS prominent Irishmen in Baltimore and Cincinnati, who never before voted the Republicau ticket, have declared their intention of supporting Mr. Blaine.

CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS has a presidency. It is that of the Union Pacific. The Adams family always were notable in that capacity, and they are direct lineal descendants of the first man.

THE universal demand of his party for Mr. Tilden is merely an emendation of the old saying about the Indians, and an announcement to the world that the only good Democrat is a dead Democrat.

THURMAN'S name is again mentioned as a very promising dark horse. The only trouble with Thurman as a Democratic nominee is that the man is too large and the barrel is too small.

THE Democratic State Convention of Maine met Tuesday, the 17th, and nominated John B. Redman, of Ellsworth for Governor. John B. Redman, of Ellsworth, is entitled to the sympathy of every generous heart.

THE so-called Republicans who are bolting the ticket are not Republicans at all and have no right to claim the name The nominations just made show that the people rule the Republican party and the politicians are bolting merely because they are not permitted to rule.

No state in the Union was more pleased with the result of the Republican National Convention than Iowa. The ticket is heartily endorsed by the entire Republican press of the state. The soldier vote is especially pleased with the nomination of Senator Logan.

AN independent newspaper says that Blaine's supporters constitute the "riffraff" of the Republican party. In Hartford, Conn., these supporters include such men as ex-President Theodore Woolsey, Rev. Dr. William M. Barbour, ex-Governor Bigelow, Henry B. Harrison and other distinguished citizens.

IT is a singular coincidence in the nomination of Mr. Blaine, and an omen which every Republican will accept as a good one, that every candidate bearing the name of James has won the fight, viz: James Madison, James Monroe, James K. Polk, James Buchanan, James A. Garfield and surely James G. Blaine.

Organize at Once.

Notwithstanding the opinion expressed by some of our local politicians at the late ratification meeting held in Bellefonte—notably those who "were not for Blaine until the fourth ballot was taken at Chicago"—"that no work should be done until about six weeks before the election," we believe such a course would be detrimental to the best interest of the party and fatal to its success if universally followed throughout the country. The wisdom of the course of the National Committee in calling an early convention must be apparent to every honest, true-hearted Republican who will take time to consider the matter carefully. If the Republican workers make the most of the opportunity thus afforded them it will be found of very great advantage to the party in the contest. In the past the course pursued by the so-called Republican leaders in this county has not borne such fruit as would give a modest man an opportunity to boast of his achievement. It has been a policy of inaction in all the earlier days of a contest until the minds of men had become excited to such a degree as to be the least susceptible of conversion. They have trusted too much to sharp practice and weasel tickets and too little to an effort to educate voters in and convert them to true principals of government. The result has been that the Democratic majority has steadily increased from four hundred in 1872 to from eight to eleven hundred in 1880. Shall we pursue the same course and have to say twelve hundred in 1884? Many active workers take great credit to themselves for the number of voters they can influence on election day—the number of men they voted. If majorities could be changed by such a course it would be a disgrace to American citizenship. To claim that they can is to defame the character and belittle the intelligence of the voter. We have more faith in the good sense of the mass of voters than to believe that twenty-five votes can be made in a national contest in the entire county of Centre by such work. We believe, therefore, it is high time to try some other plan and if the old leaders insist on working in the old way let them go their way, but new leaders must also come to the front who will appeal to the intelligence of the voters and try to convert men instead of trusting to their power to force them, against their will. In speaking upon this subject, the N. Y. Tribune gives these facts. Throughout the West, and in many localities at the East, the Republicans have already perfected working organizations for the campaign, and are rapidly sweeping into their ranks young men who are about to cast their first vote, and voters formerly Democratic, whom the names and the principles of the Republican candidates strongly attract. It is no small advantage to have a full month in which this kind of work can go on before the Democratic candidates can be placed before the people. But this advantage becomes the greater because Mr. Blaine's personal popularity, his record in foreign affairs and his own position and that of his party on the tariff, enable him to appeal to a large class of voters who have not hitherto supported Republican candidates.

Thus it appears that, in one locality in New York a club of 100 Blaine Democrats has been formed, and similar clubs are reported at a great many points, especially in the West. But a much larger number of allies in the aggregate has been secured by the enrolment of individuals in the Blaine and Logan campaign organizations, and by the expressions of opinion which the prompt and earnest work of those organizations elicit. The Democratic party is weaker by many thousand votes already than it was before the Republican nominations were made. If the Republicans organize everywhere, thoroughly and promptly, and set to work with the earnestness shown in many localities, they will secure gains before the Democratic Convention has acted which may prove decisive at the close of the campaign. There is needed everywhere campaign organization, to bring into active co-operation those who are disposed to support the Republican candidates, to distribute as early as possible campaign papers among those voters whose minds may be reached by sound reasons and solid facts. Every day of such work, at this time, before partisan excitement has been roused, will be worth weeks of hard work later in the year.

If any men who have formerly been leaders wish to wait for the possibilities of a Democratic Convention, that is excellent reason for inviting new men, and especially younger men, to take the working positions. The work of the campaign will best be done by those who put their whole hearts into the work, and the young Republicans are almost everywhere especially enthusiastic for the Republican ticket. At any rate the time should not be lost. Campaign organizations should be in activity in every quarter before another week has passed, placing sound Republican papers and documents before all voters who may be influenced by them, and enlisting the co-operation of all former Democrats who may be willing to join the good work.

For Commissioner.

A glance at our advertising columns will disclose the fact that we are authorized to announce the name of Henry C. Campbell, of Ferguson township, as a candidate for commissioner. The record Mr. Campbell has made should be one of the best reasons why the convention should consider his candidacy favorably. He, with the co-operation of the other members of the board, has made diligent efforts to do the people's business with as much care and economy as he would have conducted his own affairs. When he entered upon the duties of his office he found the county to be eighty-three thousand one hundred and sixty-seven dollars and nine cents in debt ($83,167.09.) In the two years he has served the debt has been reduced forty-one thousand twenty-four dollars and eight-onecents ($41,024.81), leaving the debt last January forty-two thousand one hundred and forty-two dollars and twenty-eight cents ($42,142.28 and in addition to this noble record during the present year the debt has been still further reduced about sixteen thousand dollars. Need we offer any other reason why Mr Campbell should receive the support of republicans? As a man of honor and ability he needs no word of commendation from us. His record is before the people. To the great majority he is known and is deservedly popular. This fact is beyond dispute because there is no one Democrat or Republican who does not at once admit that his course in office has been pure and above criticism. He is a man of the people with the interest of the people at heart and with the manly courage to stand up for the right without regard to the complaints and threats of men who would strive to turn him from the strict line of duty. The position he has held has not been as easy a one as many might suppose. It has taken much firmness of will many times to resist the importunate demands of men who had an "axe to grind" at the county's expense. Curses loud and deep have been many times made because the commissioners would not yield to the demands made upon the treasury for prices and favors that had for years been accorded contrary to law. Precedents established years age when the Board was entirely Democratic were by the present board fearlessly ignored and all their acts and decisions governed by a purpose to obey the law and serve the interest of the people in an efficient and economical manner.

SEVERAL gentlemen, whose names appeared in the list appended to the call for the Boston Independent meeting, have written to the Journal of that city saying that they never signed the document and have no sympathy with the movement. The Journal pertinently asks: "Is the movement to purify politics going to start out by something that may be called forgery?"

Mud Throwing Commenced.

The Democratic party, in its desire to beat Blaine, has already commenced to throw the vilest kind of mud at him. The Harrisburg Patriot, which is the champion Democratic mud slinger of Pennsylvania, opened the dirty side-show on Monday, June 16, by putting words into the mouth of Charles H. Bergner, Esq., an eminently respectable citizen of that city, which he never uttered. It is unnecessary to quote the entire "interview" which the city editor of the Patriot pretended to have had with Mr. Bergner. In it Mr. Bergner is represented as saying that Mr. Blaine's failure to receive the nomination at Cincinnati in 1876 "was accomplished by a disclosure made by William H. Kemble, who was a delegate from the Fourth district, Philadelphia."

The interview proceeds to quote what was said by Mr. Kemble to the Pennsylvania delegation. It states that he pulled two checks from his pocket, one for $5,000 and the other for $2,500. Kemble is represented as saying that the checks were given by him to Blaine for rulings in reference to certain legislation while he (Blaine) was speaker of the House. The checks again came into Kemble's possession in the ordinary course of such transactions.

No one believed this scandalous story, but it was a satisfaction to have it refuted and the editor of the Philadelphia Press took the trouble to do so. A representative of that paper consulted Mr. Bergner on the subject. That gentleman said with emphasis:

I never said to any person at any time that I saw or knew of a check being circulated among the Pennsylvania delegates during the balloting by Mr. Kemble or any one else. I could not have truthfully said so, because I was not in Cincinnati at that time. On the evening of the 15th, at 8 o'clock, I left Cincinnati for Harrisburg. When the final balloting began I was in Altoona. This fact rendered it impossible that I could have witnessed what that paper attributes to me. You must know, I know and every member of the Pennsylvania delegation of 1876 knows that nothing like that which I am made to detail took place.

If any thing of the sort occurred, Mr. Kemble would surely know something of it. One paragraph of his reply to an inquiry of the Press reporter will suffice to give the lie direct. It was as follows:

"That whole thing is a damned lie," said he. "There isn't one single word of truth in it; not one word," he continued, emphatically. "I never made such a speech at any such consultation. I never had any business transaction with Mr. Blaine in my life. I never gave him my check for any amount; neither did I ever hold his. In short, there is not a word of truth in the story."

Mr. Harvey, of Lock Haven, who was consulted on the subject, knew nothing of it although he was a delegate in the convention. The Press also received other denials, as follows:

Col. M. S. Quay said yesterday in referring to the story: "That is the customary Democratic lie. It is cut out of the whole cloth. I was a delegate in 1876, and attended every conference of the Pennsylvania delegation, and no such thing ever occurred."

Chairman Thomas V. Cooper said, "Mr. Bergner dreamed that. I was at the Convention, and have no hesitation in saying that the thing is a lie."

P. A. B. Widener said: "I was with Mr. Kemble nearly all the time in Cincinnati in 1876, and should have known if such an incident had occurred. But it did not. Mr. Kemble has never mentioned such a thing."

What motive could prompt the Patriot to print such a foul slander we cannot understand. But it is only a sample of what the Democrats and bolters will attempt during the entire campaign. Again we caution our readers not to believe one of them. In voting for Blaine a ballot will be cast for as pure a man as God ever made, and not one of his slanderers has yet been able to even discolor his character.

SEA SHORE resorts are filling up.

Victory for Temperance.

The temperance party at Osceola, Pa., has again triumphed. Stewart Daily applied for a tavern license and was backed by a majority of voters in the town and borough; but among the remonstrants were nearly half the voters and a large number of women and many male minors. The court in rendering its decision said:

"No objection to Mr. Daily personally is made. There is no complaint against his habits; none against his accommodations; none against his previous management of his house. These seem to be unobjectionable. The only objection raised is to having a licensed hotel in their midst. Upon this subject the Legislature has given the citizens of any borough or township a right to be heard, and the business of the court is to listen for the purpose of gathering an expression of the public will, regard being had to the number and character of those petitioning and those remonstrating, respectively. We can do nothing else upon the showing in this case than to decide that the sentiment of Osceola, as expressed by the petitions and remonstrances, is against the granting of this license, and for that reason only we decline to grant the same."

We copy the above from the Presbyterian of June 14, 1884. The position assumed by Judge Krebs in this decision seems to be very different from that taken by the Centre county court and many prominent lawyers at this bar. It is claimed here that where there is no complaint against the habits of the applicant, nor his accomodations, nor against his previous management, and when he complies with the law in every particular the court has no discretion, and whether the community want a retail liquor establishment in their midst or not the court must grant the license. Will the temperance voters of the county take the same view of this matter? There is a chance for them to answer this question in the coming election.

THE Centre Democrat repeat the lie started several days ago by the Harrisburg Patriot that Charles A. Bergner, late editor of the Harrisburg Telegraph, is not going to support Blaine notwithstanding the fact that Mr. Bergner has denied it over his own signature. It also accuses Senator Hoar, of Massachusetts, of utterances which he neve e. We would call the attention of the Democrat to the fact that new railroads are being built in this county that will carry the news quickly to all parts where Dem crats have in the past been deceived by their county organs, and it is time that the papers of that class recognize that fact now and get themselves a little in practice to tell the truth. Now, take our advice, gentlemen; tell the truth now and then, because the day for any result to come from such lying political "roorbacks" is passing away.

DEMOCRATIC criticisms of the Republican platform are of all things amusing. Their only complaint is that it is too good. "You don't mean it!" is what they exclaim. The Republicans met in convention at such an early day and expressed themselves so truthfully that it is quite exasperating. Their minds range over the entire field of possible issues only to find that the Republican platform speaks right on every subject. "We'll reaffirm the platform of former years," is what they conclude, and leave voters to imagine what those platforms were. They forget that new issues have come to the surface and a party to succeed must be aggressive.

THE Republican party performed a necessary amputation at Chicago, and the free trade organs like the New York Times and Post are now merely engaged in showing that they were a part of the free trade excrescence and not of the sound political body.

GENERAL NOTES.

Lake Superior is said to contain 36,000 islands.

Oil has been discovered in Roscommon Co., Mich.

The memoirs of Taglioni, the danseuse, are in press.

France has already spent 108,000,000 francs in Tonquin.

The Swiss Federal Council has agreed upon a new customs tariff.

Work on the Lick observatory in California is actively progressing.

John A. Logan divides the applause even with James G. Blaine.

The net profits of the Suez Canal for 1883 reached 35,000,000 francs.

The scale of wages has been signed by the iron manufacturers in Cincinnati.

Crowley's iron works, at Philadelphia, were damaged $40,000 by fire on Wednesday.

The National Library of France contains a million more books than that of England.

San Francisco's assessed valuation is this year $66,000,000, an increase of $3,000,000.

The Indian Government has decided to subsidize the powerful Afghan tribe of Ghilzais.

A laborer has been murdered at Villa Martin, Spain, by order of the Black Hand Society.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Ohio began its session in Cincinnati on the 18th.

The Boers are determined to maintain the new Zulu king, Dinizulu, on the throne of his father, Cetewayo.

A new diamond field has been discovered in South Africa, and valuable deposits have already been extracted.

Governor Cleveland has signed the bill allowing $350,000 for enlarging the Metrolitan Museum of Art, New York City.

The Dominion Bolt and Iron Company, at Toronto, has been closed. The workmen left for the Northwest and the States.

The present senior class at Harvard College is the largest ever graduated at that institution or at any other American college.

The great tunnel under the river Mersey, England, will be three and one-eighth miles in length. Work on it is progressing rapidly.

Louise Mitchell and Prince Krapotkine both expect to be pardoned by the French Government on July 14, the occasion of the national fete.

Pueblo, Colorado, has an effective way of ridding the city of unlicensed dogs. The city council pays the police $1 each ter every one they kill.

In consequence of the threats of dynamiters a cordon of armed watchmen has been established around Eaton Hall, the Duke of Westminster's residence in Chester.

Cattlemen in Herkimer and Oneida counties, N. Y., are becoming alarmed over the increased mortality among young cattle. Pleuropneumonia is said to be the disease.

Mrs. Powers, a beautiful widow of West Las Animas, is said to be the wealthiest cattle raiser in the West. She is worth $15,000,000, and is called the native cattle queen.

An escort of soldiers now accompany every train upon the Mexican Central Railway. This is considered necessary on account of the constant efforts to wreck the trains.

The enthusiasm for Blaine shows no sign of abating in Ohio. No presidential canvass in the state ever witnessed so many ratification meetings and the formation of so many campaign clubs in so short a time.

Mr. Hammond, the owner of St. Gatlen, began life as a stable boy at Newmarket. During the last few years he is said to have won $400,000 on the race course. By St. Gatlen this year he wins $150,000.

A New York ice cream manufacturer claims to be able to make ice cream keep a year, in just as good condition as when first made. It is in brick form, about 8x4x3 inches, and wrapped up in white paper.

Some statistics recently published by the insurance companies show that nearly 8 per cent of the annual number of fires, and more than 3 per cent of the yearly fire losses, in the country are to be attributed to spontaneous combustion.

The town of Heath, Mass., has no resident physician, no lawyer, no rumseller, and no saloon of any kind among a farming population of 600. There are two well-organized religious societies, eight schools and a store and post-office.

The famous giant grape vine, of Santa Barbara, Cal., is liable to be surpassed by one of its progeny. It is 25 years old, has a circumference of 3 feet 11 inches, and in 1883 bore three tons of grapes. It is of the Mission variety.

Col. Burnside, disbursing officer of the Post-office Department at Washington, D. C., recently arrested for embezzlement and released on bail, has been rearrested because of the discovery of an additional $8,000 deficit in his accounts.

A Huston county, Ga., man made $450 clear off 17 acres of peanuts last year, besides fattening a drove of 300 hogs. Fifteen years ago Mr. F. A. Palmer, the new general agent of the Wabash Railroad, in Chicago, was a peanut peddler on the road.

Mr. Blaine's nomination was such a development of the real wish of the people of the Republican party as, it seems to me, has rarely taken place in the convention of any party. I am very well pleased with the ticket as it is, and I am quite satisfied that it can be elected. —[Rev. Dr. Armitage, of New York City.

Mr. Blaine's most intimate personal friends are William Walter Phelps, Whitelaw Reid, Hannibal Hamlin, Charles Emory Smith, Ellis H. Roberts, of Utica, John Sherman and General Sherman, Senator Allison, of Iowa, Joseph Medill, of Chicago, General Nicholas Anderson, Hon. Joseph Holt, General Montgomery C. Meigs, and a great host of like eminence and character.

Poetry.

THE NEXT PRESIDENT.

His name let us spell, with a big B beginning,
And L for a Leader with life in his veins—
That B in the bonnet of Liberty singing
So loud it has started, a buzzing in Blaine's;
Let us stand up and spell, with a big B beginning.

CHORUS—Spell it Blaine with our lips and our eyes,
With our hands and our hearts spell it Blaine;
Let it come like the dews from the skies—
With the sound like the down-pouring rain;
Spell it Blaine, spell it President Blaine.

Let us print it in one solid syllable splendid,
With big letters, blunt when they rally from Maine;
And let us so spell it, that when we have ended,
We may safely pronounce the next President Blaine.
Let them say, when we've done, that the spelling was splendid.

Let us spell it just so, for the music that's in it,
With a long, laughing I for the lads down below;
With a big B for Battle and B to begin it—
There's a way for the people, who will spell it so!
Let us spell it that way, for the music that's in it.

Let us stick to that spelling, in solo and chorus,
With an ending as grand as the sea's rolling tide!
With a B on the conquering banner before us,
The B that in Liberty's bonnet we spied;
Spell it so, out of school, and in school with a chorus.

UNMADE HAY.

We knew by the clouds to the westward
It was going to rain that day,
And there was the whole of the meadow lot,
All spread with the fragrant hay.
And the clouds grew darker and larger
As the wind the tree tops tossed,
And, hard though I was working,
It seems that the day was lost.

My farm was a small and poor one,
And the hay crop was all I had,
And I could not afford to hire a man,
For the times were dull and bad;
And matters were looking dreary
For me that summer day,
When I heard a sweet voice behind me:
"I will help you get in the hay!"

'Twas my neighbor's daughter, Molly,
Who lived just across the road,
And soft was the light in her down-cast eyes,
And the blush on her cheek that glowed.
I gladly accepted the service
She offered in a friendly way,
And there by my side that afternoon
She helped me gather the hay.

She was no fine lady feeble,
Though her arms were plump and white,
And she raked all day with me, row for row,
Till the fall of the summer night.
And then, when we ceased our labors,
And the hay was stored away,
From the depth of my heart I thanked her
For her kindness to me that day.

And I took her home to her cottage,
But I didn't pause to woo,
And I asked not her hand in marriage,
Which I knew she thought I'd do.
I left her there at the gateway,
Beneath the branches brown,
And from her looks I know she was
The maddest girl in town.

ONE DAY.

One day! I wear it on my heart
As title ones wear royal gems.
One day! it crowns my life with light
Outshining kingly diadems.

One day of perfect, perfect bliss
With none beside, dear one, save thee,
To talk, and smile, and fill the hours
With love's ecstatic harmony.

O'er yonder waste of coming years
I care not how the shadows play,
For through and through my soul will shine
The matchless glory of One Day.

I cannot wander in the gloom
So far that I shall fail to see,
When e'er I turn, that gleaming height
Kissed by the Sun of Memory.

Our Story Teller.

What Came to Dilly's House.

BY KATE W. HAMILTON.

Dilly was perched on a fence post, her light hair flying about her face, as usual, and her little red hands clasped behind her back. The three or four small toes that peeped out of the ragged shoes, were red, also, for the autumn day was cold, but Dilly was used to such trifles. Toddles, the baby, who could not climb the fence, contented himself with looking through. He was bundled up—in a fashion of Dilly's own invention—in an old shawl. If the round face that peered between the fence rails was roughened by the chill wind, he, like Dilly, had grown accustomed to such discomforts.

It occurred to Freddy Burr, in the next yard, however, that their situation was scarcely agreeable. He looked up from the stick he was trying to cut with the hatchet, and said: "What makes you sit up there on such a day as this? Why don't you go into the house and get warm?"

"'Cause I'd rather stay here and watch you, 'taint no fun in the house," said Dilly.

"Well, I wouldn't think it was any fun out here, I tell you, if I didn't have a warm coat and scarf, and these thick boots," remarked Freddy, displaying a pair of red tops that were his pride.

Dilly looked at them, and an old, vague wonder awoke as she did so, and grew more and more distinct, until it presently took shape in these words:

"Why don't I have such nice things, and something to wear on my head?"

"'Cause your father drinks 'em up," promptly answered Freddy, without the slightest hesitation in disclosing the truth.

Dilly pondered a moment and as promptly denied it.

"No he don't either, folks can't drink such things. Where do you get yours?"

"My father buys them for me; and the reason your's don't get them for you is 'cause they all go into old Barney's rum barrels, down at the corner. That's the way of it, true as you live, Dilly Keene, and its awful mean, too," declared Freddy, growing indignant as he explained.

Then a voice from the pretty house beyond called Freddy, and he ran in, while Dilly and Toddles, with their amusement of watching ended, turned away

Dilly surveyed herself and the baby thoughtfully, then sat down on the log to meditate.

If what Freddy Burr told her was true, something must be done.

And the longer she pondered, the more fully she became convined that she had heard the truth.

"'Cause other folks has things and we don't, and what must be ours goes somewhere else," she reasoned, "they can't be any good there, either. I'm just sure they can't. Maybe I've got a hood—maybe it will be a nice red one, pretty and warm. Wish I had it now. Wish Toddles had—"

She stopped as a brilliant plan flashed suddenly through her mind. Wouldn't her mother be surprised if she could do that—poor mother, who was out washing, and who would be so tired when she came home to-night.

"Toddles, let's do it," she said, springing up excitedly. "Let's go and see if we can get some of 'em."

"Yah!" said Toddles, contentedly, and taking his hand she opened the creaking gate, and led the way into the street.

There was a number of men in the store at the corner—a queer store with a curtain across the lower half of the front windows. Dilly saw them when the door opened, but she was a determined little body, when once she had decided on the proper thing to do. So she only clasped Toddles' hand tighter and walked in and up to the counter, making an extra effort to speak distinctly, because her heart beat so fast.

"Please sir, have you got anything of ours a soak here?"

There was an instant's silence, then a shout of laughter.

"Well, now that's a neat way of putting it. Hey, Keene, these youngsters of years wants to know if Barney has you in soak, here?"

An old slouched hat behind the stove was raised a little, but there was no other sign that the man heard. Dilly shrank back.

"Oh, I didn't mean him!"

"What did you mean, then?" asked a coarse, redfaced man advancing from behind the bar, and speaking in tones not at all gentle or amiable.

"Shoes and coats, and such things," faltered Dilly.

"Hoods—I'm afraid it is spoiled with whisky, but maybe ma could wash it out. Wouldn't you take some out of your barrel, Mr. Barney? We need 'em awfully bad."

"What barrel? who sent you here?" he demanded.

"Your rum barrel," answered Dilly, standing her ground desperately, though with a little catch in her voice, that was ready to break into a sob. "Ma works all the time, and she looks so sorry, and we don't have any nice dinners at our house, like at Freddy Burr's, and no shoes and clothes nor anything. I asked Freddy where our good things went to, 'cause they don't come to our house, and he said you had them down here in your barrels. Please do take some of 'em out Mr. Barney. I'm sure it can't make anybody's drink better to have a little boy's and girl's new shoes and dresses and everything in the barrel."

"You are right there, Sissy, it's nigh about spoiled the taste of mine," said one of the group at the counter, putting down his glass with a queer, perplexed look.

But there was no perplexity in the bar-keeper's look. That was wrathful.

"We've had enough of this nonsense! Now you leave, you young ragamuffins, as fast as your feet will carry you, and never let me catch you inside these walls again."

He stepped toward them as if to drive them out, but the man behind the stove suddenly arose.

"Take care, Barney, you'd better not touch them, you've knocked me about often enough, but you'd best leave them alone."

There was a fire in the eyes under the slouched hat before which Mr. Barney drew back.

Both children were crying by that time, but the father took a hand of each.

"Come Dilly, come baby," and without a look at his companions, he passed out.

It was a very silent walk.

Toodles' eyes dried as soon as the stranger, whose loud voice had wakened his infant terror, was out of sight.

But poor little Dilly's heart was sore with disappointment and fear. She had failed in the scheme she had thought promised so fairly. No hood nor shoes after all her bravery in venturing into that dreadful store; and who could tell how mad her father might be.

She stole sly glances up at him from under the old hat, but she only saw a sober, downcast face, and he said nothing, not even when they reached home.

He hunted up some fuel and made a better fire; then he sat down before it, with his head between his hands and left the children to their own devices.

But two weeks later Dilly confidently said to Freddy:

"See here," she said, pushing the toes of her new pair of stout shoes through the fence.

"And see here!" continued Dilly bobbing up for an instant to show the head gear that covered her yellow hair, and touching it significantly with her finger.

"Where did you get 'em," repeated Freddy.

"My pa worked and got 'em, and brought 'em home; and they didn't get into nobody's barrel," explained Dilly with great pride and little regard for grammar.

Then she pressed her head against the fence for a prolonged interview.

"You see the billenium has come to our house."

"The what?" questioned the bewildered Freddy.

"The billenium," said Dilly complacently, "but it means good times. Anyhow, that's what ma calls it, and I guess she knows; it was just this way, Freddy Burr: When you told me Mr. Barney had all our nice things down at his store in a barrel, I just went down there and asked him for 'em—me and Toddles."

"You didn't!" exclaimed the horrified Freddy.

"Did too," declared Dilly, with an emphatic nod of her head. "Well, he wouldn't give me one of 'em, and was just as cross as anything. So then my papa got up from the stove and walked home with us. He didn't scold but just sat down before the fire this way, and thinked and thinked. At last he put his hand in his pocket, there was nothing there; then he put it in the other, and found ten cents, and he went and bought some meat for supper. Then when ma came home he talked to her, and they both cried. I don't know what for, unless it was 'cause we couldn't get the things out of the old barrel. And ma hugged and kissed me most to death that night, she did. Well, my pa got some work the next day, and brought home money; and now he has found a place to work every day. He bought all these things, and says his little boy and girl shall have things like other folks. So now you'll know what billenium means, when anybody asks you, and you can tell them Dilly Keene 'splained it to you."—Independent.

A Story of Chicago Sentiment.

Chicago Tribune.

"Yes, I love you."

Softly, very softly, were these words spoken, and yet above the dreamy measures of a Straus waltz whose strains floated into the conservatory where Harold Nonesuch and Beryl McIntosh were standing they came clear and distinct to the man's ears, and as the ruby red lips ceased moving Beryl found herself suddenly clasped in a pair of strong arms that drew her close to the only man she had ever loved—close to the heart of one whose life was in the future to be part of hers, whose every action would bring to her weal or woe, bitter anguish or rose-crowned joy. And as she stood there, not trying to escape from a thraldom that was of itself an intense, permeating joy of which she had hitherto been wholly ignorant, felt for the first time that inexpressible sense of perfect security and rest—that-away-with-care-the-carpets-are-down-at-last condition of mind—that comes to every woman when the silken fetters of a pure and passionless affection bind fast her heart to that of one whom she can both love and respect. And so when Harold raised the pretty face to his, looked with ardent admiration into the lustrous brown eyes, and pressed upon the dewy lips a pulsing kiss that seemed to seal the compact of their betrothal Beryl did not resist him—only when the pink suffusion of a blush that swept like a wave of flame over her face had passed away she laid her head trustingly on his shoulder and wept tears of joy.

For a moment Harold stood silently by Beryl's side, not daring to intrude upon the sacred precincts of an emotion that filled this girl's whole life. But presently he led her to a fauteuil, and when he had seated himself by her side and kissed away the tears that glistened so prettily on the drooping eyelashes he said to her.

"And why do you love me so, Beryl? Why is it that you are willing to become mine for life?"

No answer. The moonbeams flit erratically through the branches of the linden trees that stand just outside the window, not a breath of air stirs the leaves, and the murmurous breathing of a star-eyed cow in the back yard of Brierton Villa is the only sound that breaks the almost deathlike silence.

"Can you not tell me," he asks.

"Yes," Beryl answers. "You know I love dancing."

"I do."

"That is why, one day, God willing, I will be your bride."

"But I do not understand your words!" exclaims Harold. "Why do you marry me on account of your love for dancing?"

"Because," she answers, looking at him with an expression of infinite tenderness and pathos in her pure young face, "you have learned my step to perfection."

Overdoing It.

Some of the students at the University of Texas are more given to drinking wine than perusing their books, but some of them are very industrious. One of them, on being invited to play a game of billiards, declined:

"Why, what's the matter?"

"I've quit all that. I get up at 5, and study three hours. After breakfast I go to hear Professor Roberts' law lecture. In the afternoon I study five more hours, and I never quit my books before 11 o'clock at night. I study seventeen hours a day."

"Why, man alive, that's too much. That's enough to kill a mule. But you don't look as though you overworked yourself. You are as fat as a buck and your complexion is rosy. How long have you been working seventeen hours a day?"

"I'm going to begin to-morrow," responded the overworked student.

A deserted waste—the old maid's.

Davis on Blaine.

From the New York Herald.

"I will heartily support Mr. Blaine," said Judge Davis, "because he was fairly chosen upon his merits by the supreme council of the Republican party. Whatever my opinion may have been heretofore as to the expediency of nominating Mr. Blaine, just now I cheerfully yield it up to the superior wisdom of my party. Mr. Blaine was not chosen through the exercise of undue influence upon the delegates or through the weight of patronage. He was clearly the honest choice of honest men. He is, moreover, the leading Republican statesman of today, a wise, brilliant and experienced public officer, who will give the country a strong, successful and conservative government."

"Do you really think Mr. Blaine would be conservative?"

"I do, indeed. He understands all the questions of the times and is the very best representative of the platform adopted by the party. I think he would be bold in upholding right, but prudent in the exercise of his power."

BLAINE'S PROTECTIVE POLICY.

"Can he be elected?"

"Certainly he can. The country is not ready to hand over the government to a party which cannot make up its mind upon national principles, and which has not pluck to stick to them if it had any. The country is looking to Blaine for the success of the wise measures of industrial protection which have been promised. Protection will be the issue upon which he will be triumphantly elected. England has 30,000,000 of people, and against our grain trade with her she is bringing, as fast as she can, the competition of India and Egypt. Our meat trade will be taken away by Australia if possible. Now, what we want is to so protect and encourage our native industries that they will utilize the bulk of what our farmers and other producers raise, and then, with a whole commercial system within our own borders, we will be in a stronger position than any other nation. We have a market of fifty-five million people. We had better develop that market than struggle for the thirty millions across the Atlantic with the killing competition of India, Egypt and Australia. Protection will do this, and Blaine means protection. This, I think, is his strong point.

"But how do you regard him so far as the charges of his dishonesty is concerned?"

"I do not believe Mr. Blaine ever made use of any office he has held to make money. The current scandals are false. As to his policy while Secretary of State I did not agree with him, but I never suspected him of any dishonest intention."

"You know how widespread is the fear that Blaine will plunge the country into war if he is elected."

"Yes, but the fears are ungrounded. Mr. Blaine will avoid trouble with foreign nations by removing the causes of trouble. He will uphold the rights of American citizens abroad in a firm manner, and yet in such a way as not to give offence. His policy will be to say right at the start that the government will do such and such a thing, clearly and emphatically. Then this determination will be courteously made known to the nations interested. That is the sort of policy that will insure a respect for America."

CAN BLAINE GAIN THEM TO HIS SIDE.

"Can he reconcile to him such men as Grant and Conkling?"

"I think unquestionably that Grant will declare for Mr. Blaine. As for Conkling, no one can account for his course. I hear that he has been elected a member of the Manhattan Club, and it certainly looks as if he was marching straight over into the democrotic camp. Mr. Blaine will be supported by all his party leaders. I was with him in the House of Representatives, and I know that his power of controlling men is magnetic and marvellous. He unites wonderful qualities and is a great leader of men—one of the greatest of the age."

"How about the Irish vote?"

"He will get it. Nearly all Irishmen hate England and wish her no success. They know that the worst blow that can be struck at England in time of peace is to keep her goods from oppressing American industries by the protective policy which Blaine represents. The Irish vote will be pretty strong for him."

"Don't you think that the relations of Blaine to corporations in general will excite the anti-monopolists against him?"

"Not at all. Mr. Blaine has never been an officer of a corporation, and his actions in Congress have only been in favor of corporations where it was necessary to develop the resources of the country. Remember that the whole interior of the country would be of very little value were it not for the intelligence of Mr. Blaine and his colleagues. He is a worthy exponent of the party platform, and the Mormon question will be handled by him, I think, better than it has ever been handled before."

"Charley," said mamma, "you have been a very naughty boy; you have been playing marbles, and you know I told you that you mustn't, for it is gambling, and gambling is very wicked. Now, I hope you will never gamble again." Charley promised he wouldn't, and his mamma was so delighted that she took him to the parish fair and gave him the money to take chances in almost everything there.—Boston Transcript.

The Old Printer.

The Way He Lingered With D 13."—Sketch of Life Behind the Scenes in a Newspaper Composing Room.

"Slug Nine" learned his letters right from the boxes, and grew up and learned to set type in one of those mustang offices where they keep the type in a coffee sack and chalk out the cases on the floor. He wasn't even a very fast printer; he didn't often rush, and he never "soldiered for the fat on hook," but took whatever came along with equal patience and good nature, whether it was a "pick up" or a great take of blind copy, scribbled in pencil on blue foolscap on both sides of the paper and marked solid, with never a break or paragraph from A to Z. But he would stand at the old case and pick up type all night, pegging along on straight brevier as tranquilly as though he struck a display head on every take. He always made fair bills, and, after awhile, as the sixties began creeping on him, the boys had a way of "soldiering" for him, and maybe you don't know how hard it is for a printer not to drop a good many type and fumble for the boxes and let his thumb get most awfully sore, and have to hunt for the bellows and blow out his case and study the copy very closely and find it dreadfully hard to read, and that sort of thing, when by rushing a little, he can get a "pick up" as long as your arm and a leaded take with a paragraph to every sentence. But they did that for the old man, and he knew it by and by, and loved the boys as though they were his own, every last slug of them.

And so, year after year, he wrought among the boys on a morning paper. He went to bed about the time the rest of the world got up, and he rose about the time the rest of the world sat down to dinner. He worked by every kind of light except sunlight. There were candles in the office when he came in, then they had lard oil lamps, that smoked and sputtered and smelled; then he saw two or three printers blinded by explosions of camphene and spirit gas; then kerosene came in and heated up the news room on summer nights like a furnace; then the office put in gas, and now the electric light hung from the ceiling and and dazzled his old eyes and glared into them for his copy. If he sang on his way home, policeman bade him "cheese that," and reminded him that he was disturbing the peace, and people wanted to sleep. But when he wanted to sleep the rest of the world, for whom he had sat up all night to make a morning paper, roared and crushed by down the noisy street under his window, with cart and truck, and omnibuses; blared with brass bands, howled with hand organs, talked and shouted, and even the shrieking newsboy, with a ghastly sarcasm, murdered the sleep of the tired old printer by yelling the name of his own paper. Year after year the foreman roared at him to remember that this wasn't an afternoon paper; editors shrieked down the tube to have a blind man put on that dead man's case; smart young proof-readers scribbled sarcastic comments on his work, on the margin of his proof slips; long winded correspondents, learned to write, and long haired poets, who could never learn to spell, wrathfully cast all their imperfections upon his head. But through it all he wrought patiently and found more sunshine than shadow in the world; he had more friends than enemies. Printers and foremen and pressmen and reporters and editors came and went, but he stayed, and he saw news room and sanctum filled and emptied, and filled and emptied again, and filled again with new and strange faces. He was working one night and when the hours that are so short in the ball room and so long in the composing room drew wearily on, he was tired. He hadn't thrown in a full case, he said. One of the boys, tired as himself—but a printer is never too tired to be good natured—offered to change places with him, but the old man said there was enough in the case to last him through his take, and he wouldn't work any more to-night. The types clicked in the silent room, and by-and-by the old man said:

"I'm out of sorts."

He sat down on the low window sill by his case, with his stick in his hand, his hands folded wearily in his lap. The types clicked on. A galley of telegraph waited.

"Will any one kindly tell me what gentleman is lingering with D 13?" called the foreman, who was always dangerously polished and polite when he was on the point of exploding with wrath and impatience.

Slug Nine, passing by the alley, stopped to speak to the old man sitting there so quietly.

The telegraph boy came running in with the last manifold sheet, shouting:

"Thirty!"

They carried the old man to the foreman's long table and laid him down reverently and covered his face. They took the stick out of his nerveless hand and read his last take:

BOSTON, November 23.—The Ameribark Pilgrim went to pieces off Marble head in a light gale about midnight. She was old and unseaworthy, and this was to have been her last trip.—Burdette.

——One of the high caste families in Japan possesses a stone called a "barometer stone" which changes its color when a change of weather is imminent. It is naturally of a pinkish white hue, and several days before it rains it becomes green, while a storm is indicated by a dark aspect. It is to be presented to the emperor when he moves into his new palace.

——A friend of a merchant, whose son has recently returned from his studies at a New York business college, was asking the old man if the boy had improved his opportunities. "I should say that he had. He can imitate anybody's hand-writing and he is so expert at figures that I am afraid to let him touch the books."

Astonishing the Natives.

[San Francisco Post.]

A lot of summer tourists were on the beach at Los Angeles the other day watching some fancy rifle shooting by a party of professional otter hunters who had come over from the Channel Islands for a Sunday lark. These really wonderful marksmen, most of them native Californians, were killing gulls on the water, breaking bottles and hitting dollars thrown in the air with great eclat, when a dudish-looking young man from 'Frisco yawned in a bored manner, and remarked in a very audible voice to a companion that he didn't see anything very wonderful in that sort of shooting.

This produced a series of sarcastically polite retorts on the part of the original lords of the soil. "Perhaps the gentleman could show them something better."

"Well, I don't know," replied the young man, languidly taking one of the hunter's Winchesters. "I might if somebody would hold a cork or something on his head for me."

The riflemen showed their white teeth with amusement.

"Doubtless," said one of them, winking at his companions, "doubtless the gentleman's friend will oblige him."

"Why, to be sure," drawled the dude, looking around. But his fellow dude had sauntered off, and was standing some 300 yards further along the beach, meditatively smoking a long nine.

"Ah! there's Cholly," said the languid party, cocking the gun. "Let me see. You observe that cigar he has in his mouth? Very well. I'll put a hole through that," and taking a careless sight, he fired. At the report the smoker gave a sudden start, took out and examined his Havana, and then shook his fist angrily.

The entire crowd ran toward him. Sure enough, there was a hole right through the centre of the cigar, almost cutting it in half.

"That's the fourth cigar you've spoiled for me," said the smoking dude, in a vexed tone. "I wish you'd stop that sortof a thing!"

As for the other hunters, they looked at each other in mortified silence for a few minutes, then climbed into their boat and set sail.

"That's the most wonderful shot I ever saw," said an old gentleman to the shooter the next morning. "Such a terrible risk, too."

"Nothing wonderful about it," said the California Tell, confidentially. "All you have to do is to have your confederate cut a hole in the cigar with a penknife before hand. It's a boss scheme!"

"No," said a Philadelphia belle, "no electric light for me. It can't be turned down low enough."

HURRAH FOR BLAINE OF MAINE.

There's a war cry from Chicago,
Which has swept unto the sea;
A summons to the battle,
For the gallant and the free,
Yet a battle without bloodshed,
And a fight all free from pain,
The battle of the voters,
For our good and glorious Blaine.

There was blood in our election
In the time of shall and shan't,
When we feared to vote for Lincoln,
And we risked our lives on Grant.
Now we cast the ballot, fearing
Nothing more than autumn rain,
And our peace will grow more peaceful
Under good and honest Blaine.

Thank God that we are freemen,
And can vote for whom we will!
Thank God we spread our banners,
Freely forth on every hill!
Hurrah! then for our freedom,
Let us all in one refrain,
Proclaim that freedom's President
Shall be our glorious Blaine.

A pretty Boston schoolma'am and a youth of mien sedate
Were parting in the evening beside the garden gate;
His hand and heart he'd offered, in a grave and sober way,
And she, with quiet dignity, had named the happy day;
He lingered at the gate with her and said, in accents low,
"There is a little favor I would ask before I go,
A favor never asked before, sweet maiden, it is this,
A lover's privilege, that is all, a sweet betrothal kiss."
"If you'll wait," the maiden whispered, with her color rising high,
"Till I remove my spectacles I'll willingly comply." *

About Trees and Fruit.

Some of our exchanges are giving the law which applies to the conduct of the owners of adjoining properties in an instance where a tree which grows on the property of one extends its roots or branches into the property of the other. We condense the law points given as follows:

If the stem or trunk of the tree grows so close to the line that parts of its actual body extend into each neither owner can cut it down without the consent of the other, and the fruit is to be equitably divided. If the stem of the tree stands wholly within the boundary line of one owner he owns the whole tree with its products, although the roots and branches extend into the property of the other. The law gives the owner on whose land the tree stands the right to cut it down at his pleasure and to pluck all the fruit from it while it stands. In New York state the courts have decided that trespass for assault and battery would lie by the owner of the tree against the owner of the land over which its branches extended if he prevented the owner of the tree, by personal violence, from reaching over and picking the fruit growing upon these branches while standing on the fence dividing the lands. The owner of the land over which the branches extend may lop them close to his line. He may so dig down and cut the roots square with his line, if he so elects. In plain terms, if no portion of the trunk is within his line he may refuse all trespass of the tree on his premises, either above the ground or below it. But if he gives the tree license to extend its roots under his soil or to hang its branches over his premises he does not thereby gain any right to its fruit. He cannot pick it for himself nor interfere with the picking by the owner so long as the latter remains in the tree or on the fence which divides the property. This right to the fruit does not, however, permit the other owner to come upon the soil on the side of the line to gather the fruit, and all the fruit which falls without violence to the ground on that side may thus become the property of its owner.

Governor Curtin.

The Philadelphia Times recently alluded to our distinguished representative in Congress, Ex-Governor Curtin, in the following complimentary terms which our readers will agree is a correct analysis of the motives which control at least a part of the Governor's public actions:

"You can never strike Governor Curtin that you are not impressed with the fact that his dearest memories go back to the days of the war. You may talk to him of his later successes in politics without kindling a of fire in his eyes, but speak of the Pennsylvania Reserves and watch the veteran's heart warm and his tongue loosen. It was his great iron will that made him form the Reserves and follow their destiny step by step through fire and slaughter. To-day the history they made is the proudest monument he will ever have, and though life's changes have been great to him there never was an hour when the cherished organization was not the pride of his heart. 'This Reserve Corps was the grandest single military organization in the history of modern warfare and its achievements will stand comparison with any record made by an armed organization in the annals of the world.' Such was the tribute paid by the greatest of the war Governors the other day to the Pennsylvania Reserves."

Without pretending to give an editorial opinion of a remedy of which we know nothing personally, we desire to ask those of our readers who are afflicted with scrofulous or other diseases of the blood, to examine and test the claims of Hood's Sarsaparilla. It comes to us with high individual indorsements, is compounded by practical druggists, and is made of materials recognized as valuable by all physicians.

"Were you ever caught in a sudden squall?" asked an old yachtsman of a worthy citizen. "Well, I guess so," responded the good man, "I have helped to bring up babies."

It is said that water composes three-fourths of the human body. It is only necessary to keep the head under for a minute or two and the entire body will be composed.

THE GREAT DR. DIO LEWIS.

His Outspoken Opinion.

The very marked testimonials from College Professors, respectable Physicians, and other gentlemen of intelligence and character to the value of Warner's SAFE Cure, published in the editorial columns of our best newspapers, have greatly surprised me. Many of these gentlemen I know, and reading their testimony I was impelled to purchase some bottles of Warner's SAFE Cure and analyze it. Besides, I took some, swallowing three times the prescribed quantity. I am satisfied the medicine is not injurious, and will frankly add that if I found myself the victim of a serious kidney trouble I should use this preparation. The truth is, the medical profession stands dazed and helpless in the presence of more than one kidney malady, while the testimony of hundreds of intelligent and very reputable gentlemen hardly leaves room to doubt that Mr. H. H. Warner has fallen upon one of those happy discoveries which occasionally bring help to suffering humanity.

SAILORS ON THE SEA AND LABORERS ON THE LAND—HELP FOR THE LARBOARD WATCH.

"There is no telling the force of the wind; and the height and rush of the sea was simply appalling. When Cernice, the boatswain, and myself came down from aloft, after furling the main-royal, we were wet through and half dead from the hard toil and the exposure."

So said the mate of the "Grosvenor," when relating the incident of an Atlantic cyclone, after nearly all the crew had mutinied and left the ship in boats to escape punishment.

Mechanics who labor upon lofty buildings; carpenters, masons, painters and bricklayers, may be called a kind of shore sailors, and that their numbers are not more decimated by accident and disease is a marvel. Mr. Jabez Rogers, tuck pointer, house painter, etc., of No. 608 Madison street, Chicago, over a pipe and autumn fire, said to your correspondent:

"No, I am only a young man yet—thirty-five, that's all; but the kind of work I do tells on a fellow's looks and constitution. Last Spring I was run down with over-work and exposure. I had to give up doing any work myself, and just made out to oversee my men in a sort of half-and-half way. I thought I was played out for good and all. I was racked with a cough, stupified with a cold, torn and disabled with rheumatism. Do? I took PARKER'S TONIC and it cured me. Those three words tell the story—it cured me."

To all persons subject to risk from exposure, PARKER'S TONIC will commend itself. It purifies the Blood, incites the torpid Liver to a healthy activity, and opens the sores of the skin. This is the season of out-door perils to health. Keep the tonic near you. Price 50c and $1 a bottle. HISCOX & CO., Chemists, New York.

How Lost, How Restored

Just published, a new edition of DR. CULVERWELL'S CELEBRATED ESSAY on the radical cure of SPERMATORRHŒA or Seminal Weakness, Involuntary Seminal Losses, IMPOTENCY, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc.; also, CONSUMPTION, EPILEPSY and FITS, induced by self-indulgence or sexual extravagance, &c.

The celebrated author, in this admirable essay, clearly demonstrates from a thirty years' successful practice that the alarming consequences of self-abuse may be radically cured; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

How Watch Cases are Made.

In buying a silver watch case great care should be taken to secure one that is solid silver throughout. The cap of most cheap silver cases is made of a composition known as albata, which is a very poor substitute for silver, as it turns black in a short time. The backs of such cases are made much thinner than those of an all silver case, being robbed in order to make the cap thicker and get in as much as possible of the cheap metal. Another important point in a silver case is the joints or hinges, which should be made of gold. Those of most cheap cases are made of silver, which is not a suitable metal for that purpose. In a brief period it warps, bends and spreads apart, allowing the backs to become loose upon the case and admitting the dust and dirt that accummulate in the pocket. The Keystone Silver Watch Cases are only made with silver caps and gold joints.

ST. LOUIS, MO., Feb. 17, 1883.

In our long and varied experience in handling watches, we cannot but acknowledge and give our testimony that the Keystone Solid Silver Watch Cases are the best made to our knowledge. Having no soldering they remain homogeneous, harder and stiffer than they would be were they heated for soldering, and have more resisting power against pressure than any other cases in the market. The Next President Notified.

AUGUSTA, Me., June 21.—At an early hour this morning the streets began to assume a lively appearance and long before the hour set for the committee appointed by the national convention to notify James G. Blaine of his nomination to the presidential candidacy of the republican party to perform that duty, a considerable crowd of citizens collected around the Augusta house to gaze with curiosity upon the members of the national committee.

Promptly at 11 o'clock the national committee of notification proceeded in a body to Mr. Blaine's residence, where they were received by Mrs. Blaine. As the day was very warm and the rooms of the mansion were crowded almost to suffocation, it was suggested that the presentation of the addresses be made upon the lawn. Accordingly the committee and guests proceeded to a well-shaded portion of the grounds, where a circle was formed and all present stood with uncovered heads, making an impresisve scene, the rustling of spreading branches of great elms and the buzzing of insects being the only sounds to disturb the stillness.

When all was in readiness Mr. Blaine was escorted to the lawn, where he stood within the arc of the semi-circle. General Henderson then stepped forward and presented the address of the committee. Reading from manuscript he referred to his nomination and the action of the convention. He recounted the opposition in several instances to Republican presidential nominations from Lincoln to Garfield, saying that in all these cases the party was strong in danger. He recalled Mr. Blaine's fidelity to party in all these instances; his patriotic services to his country, in placing new guarantees of freedom in the federal constitution, as the friend of honest money and commercial integrity, of security and repose of capital, dignity of labor, manhood elevation and freedom of people, right of the oppressed to demand and the duty of the government to afford protection. He spoke of the promises made by the late convention at Chicago as set forth in the platform, closing with these words: "Mr. Blaine, during the last twenty-three years the Republican party has builded a new republic—a republic far more splendid than that originally designed by our fathers. Its proportions, already grand, may yet be enlarged; its foundations may yet be strengthened and its columns be adorned with beauty more resplendent still. To you, as its architect in chief, will soon be assigned this grateful work."

Mr. Blaine listened to General Henderson's address, standing under an elm tree, with his arms folded on his chest and his eyes cast down, but at times wandering about and scanning the faces of the audience. When General Henderson had concluded speaking Walker Blaine, the candidate's son, stepped forward and handed his father the manuscript of an address in reply to that of the committee. Mr. Blaine then read as follows:

"Mr Chairman and Gentlemen of National Committee: I receive not without deep sensibility your official notice of the action of the national convention already brought to my knowledge by the public press. I appreciate more profoundly than I can express the honor which is implied in the nomination for the presidency by the republican party of the nation, speaking through the authoritive voice of the duly accredited delegates. To be selected as a candidate by such an assemblage from lists of eminent statesmen whose names were presented fills me with embarrassment. I can only express my gratitute for so signal an honor and my desire to prove worthy of the great trust reposed in me. In accepting the nomination, as I now do, I am impressed, I am also oppressed, with the sense of the labor and responsibility which attach to my position. The burden is lightened, however, by the host of earnest men who support my candidacy, many of whom add, as does your honorable committee, cheer of personal friendship to the pledge of political fealty. More formal acceptance will naturally be expected and will in due season be communicated. It may, however, not be inappropriate at this time to say that I have already made a careful study of the principles announced at the national convention, and that in whole and in detail they bave my heartiest sympathy and meet my unqualified approval. Apart from your official errand, gentleman, I am extremely happy to welcome you all to my house. With many of you I have already shared duties of public service and have enjoyed most cordial friendship. I trust your journey from all parts of this great republic has been agreeable and that during your stay in Maine you will feel you are not among strangers, but among friends. Invoking the blessing of God upon the great cause which we jointly represent, let us trust to the future without fear and with manly hearts."

At the conclusion of Mr. Blaine's reply the members of the committee were introduced to him individually and an hour was spent in social informal converse. The members of the committee then repaired to the residence of Colonel H. S. Osgood, where they were entertained at lunch, and at 1 o'clock they left for Portland, where they were handsomely received.

Extensive Fire at Braddock.

BRADDOCK, June 19.—Shortly after 3 o'clock this afternoon a fire broke out in Sedden's hardware and tin shop, on Main street, and before the flames could be controlled the entire block bounded by Eighth and Burton streets was destroyed. The buildings were the Fawcett house, Burton-Street hotel, Russel's furniture factory, Kelly's liquor store, Sedden's saloon and ten-pin alley, Sedden's hardware and tin shop, Creighton's pump works, and Kettle's restaurant. The loss will exceed $75,000, which is partially covered by insurance. The fire is believed to be incendiary, as this was the third time Sedden's establishment has been on fire within the past six weeks. After the fire was out a small-sized riot occurred, participated in by fifteen or twenty persons, who had knocked in the bungs of whisky barrels and drank liquor until intoxicated. A number of persons were slightly hurt, but none seriously. Twelve special policemen were sworn in, who quelled the disturbance and arrested eight of the principals.

Lost in the Arctic Regions.

LONDON, June 18.—While the whaler Chieftain was recently fishing off the coast of Greenland four boats were despatched in pursuit of a school of whales. A dense fog arose while the boats were away from the ship, and their crews, after searching two days, were unable to discover the ship. They were only supplied with two days' provisions and water and, in an exhausted condition, endeavored to reach Iceland, 200 miles distant.

A tempest arose and the boats were separated. The cold was intense and only one boat had reached the land after six days at sea. The men were in an emaciated and thoroughly exhausted condition, their only nourishment being from the sucking of ice. It is feared that the other three boats, containing fifteen men, are lost. Only seven men were left on board the Chieftain, and great anxiety is felt for her fate also.

The Chicago Nominations in Washington.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—A large and enthusiastic meeting to ratify the action of the Chicago convention, was held in front of the city hall to night. Three large platforms were erected, and from them were delivered speeches by some of the best oratorical talent of congress. Judge Shellabarger, of Ohio, presided at the principal platform, on which some of the most prominent republicans in official life had seats. General Hawley called the meeting to order, after which Judge Shellabarger, Hon. John Sherman, General Hawley, Representative Bayne and others spoke, eulogizing the candidates and predicting their election in November.

Reading Railroad Matters.

PHILADELPHIA, June 20.—The Philadelphia and Reading railroad and coal and iron companies will be prepared to issue, after June 20 next, receivers' certificates bearing four per cent. interest for all claims for material and supplies furnished to the several companies since April 1st. All persons having such claims will present them for settlement.

Fatal Experiment.

PITTSBURG, June 19.—The explosion of an oil can on the south side set fire to a house and burned Lizzie Temple, aged 10, so badly that she died in an hour. A man named Frank Oxenrite, who extinguished the fire, was terribly burned about the head, face and hands. He may not recover. The little girl was using the oil to light a fire in the stove.

Butler Visits the President.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—General B. F. Butler called at the White house to-day, and had a short interview wiht the president.

Appointments by the Governor.

HARRISBURG, June 18.—Governor Pattison has made the following appointments: Trustees of the Pennsylvania State Lunatic Hospital at Harrisburg, John L. Atlee, Lancaster; Traill Green, Easton; Charles L Bailey, Harrisburg; Elisha P. Strong, to be Associate Judge of Wayne county; State Fishery Commissioners, Andrew M. Spangler, Philadelphia; James Duffy, Lancaster county; Augustus Duncan, Franklin county; John Gray, Westmoreland county; Arthur Maginiss, Monroe county; Harry Derr, Luzerne county; Trustees of the State Hospital for the Insane of the Southeastern district of Pennsylvania at Norristown, John F. Hartranft, Philadelphia county; L. P. Ashmead, Philadelphia county; Charles Hunsecker, Montgomery county; Thomas Walter, Philadelphia county; John P. Rhoads, Delaware county.

The Grant Retirement Bill.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—As the senate passed the Grant retirement bill without a dessenting voice it was believed that the measure would meet with little opposition when it was called up in the house, but it is now very probable that the house committee on military affairs, which has it in charge, will never report on the subject unless compelled to do so. General Rosecrans, the chairman of the committee, is very much opposed to placing General Grant on the retired list, and will exert what influence he can to defeat the bill. Unless compelled to report it he will let it take the quiet way of burial in a pigeon hole.

Death of the Prince of Orange.

THE HAGUE, June 22.—The Prince of Orange is dead. He passed a calm night and peaceful morning before the collapse. In the forenoon of Saturday he seemed so well that his doctors talked of sending him to the south of France. At 11 o'clock, however, he suddenly exhibited symptoms of extreme weakness and fainted. His respiration became greatly enfeebled. Subsequently a slight recovery was noticeable and then the lungs seemed paralyzed. From this time until his death the prince remained unconscious.

Funeral of General McCandless.

PHILADELPHIA, June 22.—The funeral of General William McCandless took place this afternoon with full military honors, from his late residence at Fifteenth and Filbert streets. Over 20,000 persons viewed the remains at the house before the funeral procession started. Among those in attendance were Governor Pattison and a number of other prominent men. The funeral was in charge of the Pennsylvania reserve volunteer corps, and the services of burial were under masonic conduct. The body was interred in Mount Mariah cemetery.

A Missing Bridegroom Found.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—Elwood Lincoln, who deserted Miss Ada Monfort, of Glen Cove, L. I., on the eve of his marriage to her, was in this city this morning. After leaving Glen Cove he came direct to this city, where he obtained a situation in the Government printing office as a compositor, but worked there only two hours. He is now unemployed, and is only occasionally seen in the streets. His boarding house cannot be located, he taking particular pains to keep it secret.

Curtailing the Coke Production

CONNELSVILLE, Pa., June 20.—The coke producers' association to-day decided in view of the unsatisfactory condition of trade to further restrict production by closing down ten per cent. of the ovens. This will reduce production twenty-five per cent., as fifteen per cent. of the ovens have been idle since the formation of the pool. They decided to make no change in the selling price.

Curious Disaster.

CLEVELAND, June 19.—The spontaneous combustion of chemicals left out doors caused a fire at 2 o'clock this morning, at March & Harwood's chemical works. The damage is $6,000; fully insured. The Union acid restoring works were damaged about $4,000. Four hundred carboys of sulphuric acid exploded successively, with a noise like the firing of heavy artillery.

In Death They were not Departed.

PHILADELPHIA, June 19.—A dispatch to the Press from Milton says Wm. Clapp's son and the son of John Phillips, aged 13, were found drowned in Warrior creek, near McEwensville, to-day. They were clutched in each other's embrace at the bottom of the creek.

In Memoriam.

PHILADELPHIA, June 22.—The death of Bishop Simpson, of the Methodist church, was feelingly alluded to in the several churches of that denomination in this city to-day, as also in many of the other churches.

Won't Make any Assignment.

PITTSBURG, June 22.—A rumor that Captain J. J. Vandergrift, the millionaire oil king, and of the Standard oil company, had or intended making an assignment is pronounced false by that gentleman himself.

Fast Racing.

NEW YORK, June 20.—At Fleetwood park to-day Maud S was driven a mile in 2:13½, the fastest time ever made on this track. Trinket's record was 2:14. Frank and Running Mate made a mile in 2:13½, and this afterwards covered, and then a mile in 2:12½.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS

—In the window of Louis Doll's new shoe store on Allegheny street is a large and beautiful frame containing 49 photographs. The physiognomies there displayed are so strikingly handsome as to at once attract attention and cause the spectator to exclaim: "Where in the world did you collect all those fine-looking men? Are they the members of the Continental Congress; or are they selected from among the royal body guard of the Emperor William?" But those who are at all familiar with the people of Bellefonte soon realize that they have seen those countenances before. In the centre is the portrait of Mr. Shaughensey (not the street commissioner, but the other one.) He looks as if he might be president of the company. Then there's the face of John Sourbeck, true as life and twice as natural. The most ordinary observer will at once recognize George Schrock's mustache, and when the fine features of Ed Shrom, Will Hillibish and others come into view we are surprised to discover that they are the portraits of the members of the Logan Hose Company. There they are and are a credit to the company and to the artist. Whoever wants to see a really fine-looking collection of men should consult the portraits in this frame, and if they have any duplicate copies to spare we should be happy to add each one of them to our collection of photographs.

Death of Mr. John Meyers, of Boalsburg.

On Friday last the DAILY NEWS chronicled the serious illness of Mr. John Meyers, a resident of Boalsburg; to-day it is our duty to announce his death which occurred on Saturday. So serious did his disease—erysipelas—become that it was necessary to amputate one of his legs. This operation was performed on Saturday, but Mr. M. was too weak to endure it and his death was the result.

Mrs. Meyers, widow of the deceased, has been quite ill during the past two years, and the sad occurrence is a great shock to her. Mr. Meyers also leaves six children. He was a member of the Boalsburg Post, having belonged to the 148th regiment during the war. He is also a member of the Odd Fellow Lodge. His funeral which occurred at 2 o'clock Monday was attended by members of both of these orders.

—If Artist Moore had only been prepared to take Mr. Michael Shield's picture on Sunday afternoon the effect would have been quite extraordinary. Mr. S. with several companions occupied a position on the platform extending out from Hicks' machine shops and as the photographer walked along Water street, Mr. S. struck an attitude for a picture. But just then a zephyr bore his hat into the waters of Spring creek, and it floated gaily down the limpid stream With a long pole in his hand, Mr Shields rushed into the stream as far as the water would permit, but some time elapsed ere he could fish the head-gear from the murmuring waters. He's all right now—can't vouch for the hat.

—Officials of the Pennsylvania road state the purchase of coal lands by the Lehigh company in the Snow Shoe coal region is not antagonistic to them, but they encouraged the scheme. A traffic contract has been made in which the Pennsylvania agrees to transport the product of the mines over the Snow Shoe and Bald Eagle Valley roads to Lock Haven, thence over the Philadelphia and Erie road to Mount Carmel.

—An old rag carpet which gaps at the seams covers the floor of the Y. M. C. A. reading room, in sharp contrast to the beautifully papered walls and ceiling. A durable Brussels will be purchased from the proceeds of the festival on Friday and Saturday evenings of this week, if they are sufficient for that purpose, and the new carpet is expected to be a grand improvement. Therefore, make the festival a success.

—Mr. A. C. Hopkins, of Lock Haven, is making arrangements to build a new saw mill near Snow Shoe. He has purchased ninety acres of timber land situated about a mile from Snow Shoe and it is on this tract that the mill will be placed. It will have a capacity of cutting about 50,000 feet of lumber daily and will employ about 40 men.

—Wood Benson, who was 70 years of age, appeared as Phineas Flamm in "Jacquine," in Minneapolis, on Wednesday night last, with the Mattie Vickers troupe. At 11 o'clock the same night he was a corpse, his death being caused by dropsy and pneumonia.

—The county jail now has ten inmates.

—The second largest source of revnue to the U. S. Goverument from any one branch of business, is derived from the production and manufacture of tobacco. Blackwell's Durham Tobacco Co., of Durham, N. C., claims to be the largest manufacturer of Smoking Tobacco in the world. The reputation of Blackwell's Bull Durham Smoking Tobacco is too firmly established to need any commendation at our hands. In another column our readers will notice their new announcement which is of interest to all lovers of the weed. The company are perfectly responsible, and when they announce that they will give away $11,950 in cash, it is an assured fact that they mean just what they say. Smokers will find an opportunity of combining business with pleasure by reading their announcement.

—The wicked Democrats of St. Louis are heaping petty persecutions upon General Sherman. He waters his lawn from his own private cistern and the authorities attack him for not paying a license for so doing. He requests them to tell him the price and he will pay it; but they refuse to do so, and only grumble and growl at him and send uncomplimentary reports about him to the Associated Press. As a consequence, he threatens to seek a more congenial place of residence. All right, General; come to Bellefonte. If you locate here it will first be necessary to get your lawn, but after securing that water is at your disposal in endless quantity and excellent quality. No petty persecutions in Bellefonte, General.

—The horse attached to Lewis' grocery wagon ran away on Howard street on Thursday, upsetting the vehicle and landing the driver (a boy) on the street in a very ungraceful fashion. Neither the wagon or driver were injured, but the horse is slightly the worse for his runaway experience.

After the holidays is called the "dull season" by tailors. We are offering extra inducements in low prices. Our orders for woolens have been very large. The new goods are now coming in. Leave your order now.

Education in Bellefonte.

MR. EDITOR: Noticing that your columns are open to communications on subjects relating to the welfare of our town and its people, permit me a few lines to express thoughts that may or may not effect the object for which they are intended.

There is perhaps no reason why the young people of Bellefonte should not have excellent educations. The public schools are constantly improving and they are open for all. But Bellefonte should have a really superior private institution of learning, one which in this modern day of educational growth will reflect credit on our town. If the proper efforts had been put forth at the proper time the State Normal school which is now located in Lock Haven, would have been located in Bellefonte and its pupils received the benefit of the salubrious air of this mountain town. It is true that Bellefonte has numerous private schools and an Academy where many men now distinguished in the world received their early education. The graduates of the Academy have taken high honors in prominent colleges and in after years have attained positions of distinction. Under the present principal it has done all this and if he is given the proper support it may be made even more profitable.

Doubtless the person or persons who own it are aware of the value of the property of which they are possessed. So far as the standard of the instruction given in that institution is concerned there is nothing more to be desired. It is very thorough and the results of it have invariably reflected credit on the school.

But this is just enough to suggest what a popular institution of learning it might become with the proper equipments. Modern education demands many appliances which the ruder age of fifty or a hundred years ago did not require. The building should be kept in thorough repair and furnished with the modern conveniences of steam heat, electric light, telephone connection, etc. The class, study and sleeping rooms should be comfortably furnished. The study room should be well provided with maps, school desks of the most modern construction, etc. The recitation room should have large globes, blackboards, etc., among its appliances. For the primary schools special apparatus is also needed for the imparting of instruction by means of object lessons. And no school of that character is complete without a well-equipped laboratory and a library filled with the choicest volumes for research and literary improvement.

If this is done—if the interior of this temple of learning is fitted with all that modern genius can suggest—what abundant opportunities for improvement do the surroundings suggest! Well-kept flower gardens, terraces, promenades, roadways planned with an aim to artistic taste and æsthetic effect.

Please understand that not one thought of complaint or criticism with the management of this institution is contemplated. The above are merely suggestions which it may be well for the Board of Directors of the institution to adopt. The summer vacation at the Academy is about to begin. Cannot these improvements be far advanced before the Fall session opens? If this is done, surely all the instructors connected with the school will be infused with new energy and Bellefonte can be proud that she has an institution of learning which is equal to the best.

BALD EAGLE.

—Philipsburg has two lively Blaine and Logan clubs—one composed of young men numbering 150 members and the other of older men 250 strong. Nearly everybody in that borough is in favor of the "Plumed Knight." The young men will wear high white hats and cone breast pins. They expect to engage some of Bellefonte's oratorical talent to address them, but it will be necessary for the aforesaid orators to imbibe a little snap and enthusiasm before they go over there, as the Philipsburgers won't listen to anything or anybody that isn't willing to "Whoop-er-up!" lively for the Maine chieftain. Why, on the night of the Philipsburg ratification meeting Democrats contributed store boxes liberally for the bonfire, and since the nominations business in that "city" has shown a marked improvement.

—Radishes were peculiarly abundant at market Saturday morning. Yellow, delicious butter was visible in almost every wagon. There were a few strawberries, cherries, green apples and chickens. But butter and radishes seemed to be the predominating products. If Mr. Thomas Shaughensey can't furnish something better than the last mentioned root for the patrons of his market we'll spell his name wrong next time we print it.

—This is the longest day, and, according to the calendar, the first day of summer.

The Railway Cash System.

One of the most interesting and valuable improvements made for a long time past in the stores of this place has just been completed in H. K. Hicks' hardware store on Allegheny street. It is known as the Railway Cash System and this is its first introduction into the business houses of Centre county so far as our knowledge of it extends. It was completed on Friday and the first trial of it was made Friday evening. It operates very satisfactorily.

The lines of railway which connect four separate stations in the store room with the cashier's desk are elevated sufficiently high to prevent interference with the work transacted in the store and, being made of light highly polished wood, are quite ornamental. When the purchase is made the money paid and a slip of paper containing a memorandum of the amount of the purchase are put in a hollow ball, which is tightly closed and placed in an appliance which elevates it to a level with the inclined railway. Then it rolls rapidly along to the cashier's desk. That gentleman opens the ball, takes out the paper and money, inserts the change and the ball returns over a different line of railway to the person who made the sale, who opens it and gives the change to the purchaser.

There are but two lines of railway, one leading to and the other from the cashier's desk. The most curious fact, perhaps, about the operation is that the ball always stops at the place from whence it was sent and never gets mixed at the stations, displaying more intelligence in its travels than many full-grown men and women. The different sizes of the balls is the solution of this.

This system performs the work of one or more cash boys with absolute and unerring accuracy. It is also more economical. We derived much entertainment from an inspection of it Saturday morning and believe that every visitor to the store who has never seen the system work will be greatly interested in it.

—The corn crop promises to be very large.

Wedding and Reception.

Dr. George Rishel, one of the rising young physicians of this county, was married on Wednesday, June 18, to Miss Louise Armstrong, who is one of "Maryland, my Maryland's" fair and cultivated daughters. The happy couple arrived home on Friday and an elegant and largely-attended reception was given Friday evening at their home about two and a half miles from this place.

There were about a hundred people at the reception, including representatives of Bellefonte, State College and Centre Hall society. Several serenades were tendered during the evening, some of which were not of a very attractive character.

The Doctor is becoming quite popular as a physician, as he always was socially. Of course, his many friends wish him and his lovely bride much joy.

—Mr. Barlett's team of horses ran away again on Thursday. Of course, it wasn't exactly the same team that ran away on a former occasion and we are glad to announce that this time the results were not so serious.

—How do you like this Equator weather?

WHAT WILL convince you of the wonderful curative properties combined in HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA, if the remarkable cures that have been effected by its use fail to impress upon your mind this repeatedly proven fact? Thousands are using it, and all declare that it is a medicine possessing even more than WILL ing all and we claim for it. My friend, if you are sick or in that condition that you cannot call yourself either sick or well, go and get a bottle of HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA, and realize yourself how this medicine hits the right spot, and puts all the machinery of your body into working order. CONVINCE

From the Registrar of Deeds for Middlesex County, Northern District.

LOWELL, MASS.

MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO.: Gentlemen—It affords me much pleasure to recommend HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA. My health has been such that for some years past I have been obliged to take a tonic of some kind in the spring, and have never found anything that hit my wants as your Sarsaparilla. It tones up my system, purifies my blood, sharpens my appetite, and seems to make me over. Respectfully yours,

J. P. THOMPSON.

One of our prominent business men said to us the other day: "In the spring my wife got all run down and could not eat anything; passing your store I saw a pile of HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA in the window, and I got a bottle. After she had been taking it a week she had a rousing appetite, and it did her everything. She took three bottles, and it was the best three dollars I ever invested."

Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Sold by all druggists. Price $1 a bottle, or six bottles for $5. C. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

SPICES.—The best cook in the land cannot cook successfully without pure, fresh spices. These we have in every variety. Well-seasoned food adds to long life and happiness.

SUGARS AND SYRUPS.—In Sugars and Syrups we have all the best brands in the market. Much of the sugar now sold is adulterated, and in an article of this kind there is great waste. We buy from reliable dealers, and handle only the genuine goods.

TEAS AND COFFEES.—No breakfast can be thoroughly enjoyed without a good cup of coffee or tea. A drink of this kind is stimulating and goes right to the spot. Our Coffees and Teas are fresh and strictly pure. The fragrant odor which escapes from the steaming pot as it comes in from the kitchen will convince you of this. We sell more coffee than any other two houses in the county. Why? Because we sell the best and the people know it.

NUTS, CONFECTIONERY, ETC.—In Nuts and Confectionery we have everything that is nice, and just what will please the young folks, and old folks as well. Our candies are all pure and wholesome; We do not handle the highly-colored, poisonous mixtures that ruin and decay the teeth. We have new Florida oranges (this fall's crop), fine Figs and Prunes, and a choice line of Canned Fruits and Preserves. Bear this in mind when preparing to Celebrate the merry holidays.

We make special mention of the above lines of goods because they are all leading articles at this season of the year. In other lines our stock is equally fresh and complete.

We buy the Best Goods and sell at the Lowest Figures.

Call in and inspect our No. 1 goods. Then you will know where to purchase when your cupboard needs replenishing.

Democracy in the Empire State.

SARATOGA, June 18.—The convention was called to order at 1.30 p. m. by Chairman Manning who nominated William E. Smith for temporary chairman and James Morrison and Joseph Martin for temporary secretaries. The nominations were unanimously concurred in.

The committee on resolutions reported the following platform:

Resolved, That the democracy of the state of New York is assembled to appoint its delegates to the national convention. The party commits to those delegates, in association with the representatives of the party from the other states, the general declaration of democratic principles upon national issue, at the same time recognizing that no issue could be more important than the election of a president of the United States whose character and public reputation shall give to the whole people the assurance of an honest, impartial and efficient administration of the laws, without a suspicion of personal ends or private interests.

Resolved, That as a declaration condemning the matter of state government this convention adopts and affirms the resolutions of the conventions of the party in 1874, 1876 and 1882, to which the people of the state have given hearty approval; that it recognize the duty of the legislature to respect the popular vote in 1883 for the abolition of contract system of labor in prisons, and that it heartily commends anew the efficient and upright administration of Governor Cleveland.

Resolved, That the delegates to the democratic national convention, to be appointed, are hereby instructed to enter that convention and act and vote as in accordance with the will of a majority of the members thereof, every delegate or alternate occupying the place of a delegate to be bound by this rule, and in case of the absence of both delegate and alternate from any district, the vacancy to be filled by a vote of a majority of the delegation.

The reading of the resolutions was interrupted by frequent applause and cheers for Cleveland, and counter cheers for Flower. The resolutions were passed unanimously.

At the meeting of the committee on resolutions to-day there was considerable discussion over a tariff plank, but it was finally decided by a large majority not to insert such a plank, but leave the tariff question to the national convention.

The opinion of leading editors now here is that Cleveland has three to one of the delegates as far as Flower is concerned, and is the most prominent candidate before the Chicago convention.

Preferring Butler to Cleveland.

NEW YORK, June 18.—The departure of the delegates to the Democratic State convention at Saratoga left the Astor House and City Hall devoid of their usual assemblage of seedling politicians yesterday. Among the people about, however, there were bitter criticisms of Cleveland, although there was no positive affirmation of any intention to bolt the ticket should he get the nomination. One of the most genial officials in the County Clerk's office said that if Cleveland were nominated there could be no choice for Independent Democrats between voting for him or Mr. Blaine. "Cleveland nominated," he said, "means Democracy's defeat. I believe that the nomination of Butler would be more satisfactory. Of course, Republicans could throw a lot of mud on Butler—he is used to that; but Cleveland could be covered with degenerated soil taken from his five-cent fare bill. From what I can pick up, the masses will pay him back in his own coin if they have the chance offered them by his nomination. Bayard is a good man; but his State and his secession speech are against him. Mr. Tilden is out of the race and Flower is our only choice."

It is significant that the same opinion was expressed by the employes of all the city offices except the Department of Public Works and the Sheriff's office.

The Maine Democracy.

BANGOR, Me., June 17.—The democratic state convention to-day nominated John B. Rodmar, of Ellsworth, for governor. A ballot for delegate at large to the Chicago convention, resulted in electing Payson Tucker, David R. Hastings and James F. Rawson. Archibald McMichal and Charles McCarthy were chosen electors, with Trofton Hatch and J. D. Moore as alternates. The platform declares opposition to Wartson and favors the retention of the present duties on whisky and tobacco, and for such laws as shall reduce the revenues to such amount as is absolutely required for the expenses of government. The following resolution was unanimously adopted and telegraphed to Chairman Manning, of the New York state convention:

Resolved, That in the opinion of the convention the nomination of Grover Cleveland, of New York, as a candidate for the presidency is demanded as the best to unite all friends of good government, sound morals and a wise and an honorable administration of the affairs of the nation.

Vermont Republican Nominations.

BURLINGTON, Vt., June 18.—The republican state convention met here to-day. Lieutenant Governor Samuel E. Pringle was nominated for governor by acclamation; E. J. Ormsbee was nominated for lieutenant governor, and W. H. Dubois for state treasurer.

Death of Gen. McCandless.

PHILADELPHIA, June 17.—Gen. William McCandless, late commander of the First brigade Pennsylvania volunteers, died at 9.35 o'clock this morning. He was born in Philadelphia, September 29, 1835.

[Gen. McCandless had been suffering for years from a wound received during the war, his record as a soldier howing him to be a gallant officer in the numerous battles in which he was engaged, as commander of the First brigade of the reserves. After the war he took a leading position in politics of the state, and was a strong adherent and vigorous expounder of democratic priciples. In 1874 he was nominated by the democratic party for secretary of internal affairs, and was elected after a spirited contest. He subsequently represented his district in the state senate, and was several times a candidate for congress, but failed to secure an election. When the democratic state convention met in 1878, he was one of the prominent candidates for the gubernatorial nomination, but was defeated by Hon. A. H. Dill, of Union county, although backed up by a strong and aggressive delegation from the eastern part of the state aided by many warm supporters in Allegheny county. He was held in high esteem by the members of the old reserve corps, and held the position of president of the reserve association for some time. He was in the 50th year of his age.]

The Vice President.

AUGUSTA, Me., June 16.—John A. Logan and Senator Hale arrived here to-day. They were cheered at all stations along the line. They will remain with Blaine to-night, and to-morrow will go to Ellsworth, returning to Washington on Wednesday. Blaine will be invited to accompany the party to Ellsworth. At the station here on alighting from the train the distinguished party was received with rounds of cheers.

General Logan comes here at Blaine's suggestion so that they may confer together on the work of the campaign and principally on the letter of acceptance before the committee which is to convey the official information of their nomination, reaches here. Blaine's letter is all written, but may be slightly changed in its phraseology before it is given out. It is understood that it will be of considerable length. General Logan's letter, it is thought, will be brief.

DOVER, N. H., June 16.—The committee to notify Blaine of his nomination will come here on Monday at noon, on a special train tendered by the Eastern railroad company.

Death of Bishop Simpson.

PHILADELPHIA, June 18.—Bishop Matthew Simpson of the Methodist Episcopal church died at his home in Philadelphia at 8.30 this forenoon. For the last three days or more his death was looked for at any moment, but with the vitality which had astonished his friends for many years he continued to hold out. One of his physicians was Dr. Agnew, who attended President Garfield, and he could not discover in the bishop's symptoms any sign of specific disease. His ailment was general prostration from age and overwork. The first notable sign of his prostration was when he returned from Denver last February, having gone out there to perform the ceremony at the marriage of Bishop Warren. The time for his funeral has not been fixed. The bishop was in his 74th year and had been for fifty years in the active service of the church.

Plot to Murder Emperor William.

BERLIN, June 16.—The Tageblatt to-day states that the Emperor William abandoned his regular spring journey to Wiesbaden in May last, not because of health, as has been stated, but for the reason that the detectives had unearthed a deep laid plot to murder the Emperor while he was on his way to that favorite watering place. It is stated that the police arrested an American at Elberfield who had in his possession four packages of dynamite. The prisoner on being closely questioned, stated that it was his intention to use the dynamite for the purpose of blowing up the Emperor and that he had a number of accomplices, who, if he failed, would no doubt succeed in killing the Emperor. One of these alleged accomplices has since been arrested at Munich.

Railroad Employes to be Paid.

PHILADELPHIA, June 16.—The Reading railroad company has made arrangements to pay the men at the Ashley shops and on the Lehigh and Susquehanna road this week. The amount due is about $90,000, and the pay car will very probably start out to-morrow. The payments will be only for the month of April, but the paymaster states that as soon as the April payments are completed arrangements will be made at once for the May wages. He added that there was no doubt of the June wages being paid on time. The officers of the company stated that considerable money is coming, and that these payments are made with the earnings.

About Heister Clymer's Death.

READING, Pa., June 18.—The friends of the family of the late Heister authorized the following statement relative to his death: Mr. Clymer was in bad health, suffering from malaria, profuse night sweats, and insomnia. He used narcotics in quantities which in ordinary health would only have produced sound sleep, but which in his debilitated condition produced paralysis of the brain and hurried his death. There will be no judicial inquiry and the body will not be exhumed. There is no truth in the reports of Mrs. Clymer's dangerous illness.

The Scott Liquor Law.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, June 17.—The Supreme Court announced its decisions to-day in the Scott liquor tax law cases. In that of King vs. Capella judgment was affirmed; in that of Butzman vs. Whitback judgment was reversed. This declares the second section of the law, pertaining to a first lien on the premises, unconstitutional and leaves the rest of law valid and operative as heretofore. The question of the constitutionality of the whole law is held not to raised in the case and the Court stops with the record. The liquor dealers will therefore be required to pay the June collections tax under the law, leaving the matter open for a further test before the semi-annual payment in December.

Fatal Attempt to Save Her Money.

ERIE, June 17.—Having succeeded in safely escaping from her burning house this morning, Mrs. John Roth rushed back to get her wardrobe and some money. She was missed and search was made for her by the firemen, one of whom brought out through the smoke what he thought was the body of the woman. It was the burned body of a large mastiff that followed here everywhere. Subsequently the woman's charred body was found. In one hand were melted pieces of silver money.

Georgia Democracy.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 18.—The Democratic state convention met here to-day and elected delegates-at-large to the convention. No resolutions or platform were adopted indicating the wishes of the convention as to national policy, and the delegation is practically unanimous for Cleveland. General A. R. Lowton, of Savannah, who is one of the delegates from the state-at-large, is said to be for Bayard, but the other delegates without exception announce themselves for Cleveland as the strongest man.

The Union Pacific Railroad.

NEW YORK, June 18.—At a meeting of Union Pacific directors, Sidney Dillion resigned as president, and Charles Francis Adams accepts the position. It is stated that in lieu of the dividend payable July 1, the sum of $718,814 will be paid for moneys in the company's treasury to meet the demand of the secretary of the treasury for payments under the Thurman act for the year ending December 31.

Caucus of Republican Senators.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—The Republican senators held a caucus this morning upon the Mexican pension bill. Mr. Ingalls' amendment proposing to remove the limitation on the arrears of pensions act was so modified as to extend the provision of the arrears act only to cases filed before the first of January next, and in this shape it was approved by a majority of the caucus. The subject of final adjournment was not alluded to.

Our Festive Editorial Brethren.

GETTYSBURG, June 18.—The Pennsylvania editorial excursion party today visited Round Top. This evening a public meeting was held in the court house, at which W. U. Hensel, of Lancaster, delivered an address, and E. H. Munday, of Philadelphia, read a poem. R. S. Menamin, state secretary, and now president of the association, was presented with a gold watch as a token of respect.

May Live a Few Days Longer.

PHILADELPHIA, June 16.—There had been no decided change in Bishop Simpson's condition up to noon to-day. His physicians, however, do not give any hope of his recovery and think the limit of his life will not be more than two or three days longer.

Brief Telegrams.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 17.—William M. Springer has been renominated by the democrats of the Thirteenth congressional district.

PHILADELPHIA, June 17.—Bishop Simpson's physicians at a late hour to-night report that the bishop is gradually sinking, and that his death will probably occur to-night.

DOVER, Del., June 17.—The democratic state convention to-day adopted a resolution presenting the name of Senator Bayard as their choice for the presidency.

GETTYSBURG, June 17.—The Pennsylvania editorial excursionists arrived here this evening. They stopped a short time at Carlisle and visited the Indian training school. The party numbers about two hundred.

ST. LOUIS, June 17.—A dispatch from New Loredo, Mexico, says two Americans and twelve Mexican laborers were killed by a premature explosion of a blast on the Mexican central railroad.

PITTSBURG, June 17.—A telegram from Appollo, Pa., says the Volta iron mills resumed work this morning with non-union workmen. Up to noon no demonstrations have been made by the strikers, and it is thought there will be no trouble.

PHILADELPHIA, June 17.—A special to the Press says the Novelty furniture factory and Laser's coal yard and grain warehouse at Athens, Pa., were burned to-day. Loss, $120,000; insurance, $70,000. One hundred and seventy men are thrown out of employment.

CARLISLE, Pa., June 17.—Nearly one hundred pupils of the Indian training school at this place left today for their home in the far west. They had nearly all completed their full term of three years. They belong to twelve different agencies throughout the western country.

DETROIT, June 18.—The democratic state convention met here to-day and elected delegates to the national convention. The preference of the convention is unmistakable for Cleveland as the presidential candidate.

"I am on my wedding tower," said a countryman entering a Chestnut steet dry goods store, "and my wife is waitin' for me outside. I want to buy some socks for myself, and she is too bashful to come in." "All right sir," responded the clerk, "I will be glad to show you our half hose." "Well, you see," went on the countryman, "a wedding' tower doesn't occur only about once in a man's lifetime, you know, and I don't believe in scrimpin' on such an occasion. So you needn't show me any half hose. Let me look at your whole hose.

Mrs. Blimber, walking home after the church sewing society meeting, encountered Mrs. Jorkins. "Of course you've heard of the latest clerical scandal," said Mrs. J. "All about an American minister now in Berlin. It's very shocking. I wonder what he left his congregation for?" "The very subject we were talkin' about at the meetin'. These ciergymen are gettin' so now, Mrs. Jorkins, there's no abidin' 'em. I'll not let this night pass without speakin' to Mr. Blimber and gettin' him to ask some member of the Board of Foreign Missions."

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth! If so, send at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

"Ma, I'm now 17. Mayn't I enter society?" "You will have to ask your father, Lizzie," "Oh, but he's so grum; I'm afraid to." "Speak to him prettily, dear, and he will hear you. He's in the sitting-room." Lizzie summons courage and goes to her father. "Pa, dear, I'm now 17. May I enter society?" "What kind of society?" "Why, the best society, of course." "No. Do you suppose I'm going to have you make a fool of yourself agoin' about here saying 'caw' fur car, 'faw' fur for, and such nigger talk? No, never."

Itching Piles—Symptoms and Cure.

The symptoms are moisture, like perspiration, intense itching, increased by scratching; very distressing, particularly at night; seems as if pinworms were crawling in and about the rectum; the private parts are sometimes affected. If allowed to continue very serious results may follow. "SWAYNE'S OINTMENT" is a pleasant, sure cure. Also, for tetter, Itch, salt-rheum, scald-head, erysipelas, barbers' itch, blotches, all scaly, crusty skin diseases. Box, by mail, 50 cts.; 3 for $1.25. Address, DR. SWAYNE & SON, Phila., Pa. A little girl went away with her mother for a week's visit in the country. When they returned she looked up and down the streets and at all the houses, said: "Why the town ain't red, is it?" "Of course not, Fannie, why do you ask that question?" "Because Mamma, just before we started away I heard Papa tell Mr. Tompkins that he was going to paint the town red while you were in the country. I guess he must have been busy and did't have time to do it. "Yes, dear, I do." Then there was a long silence.

HUMAN BLOOD.—On the purity and vitality of the blood depend the vigor and health of the whole system. Disease of various kinds is often the only sign that nature is trying to remove the disturbing cause. A remedy that gives life and vigor to the blood, eradicates scrofula and other impurities from it, as Hood's Sarsaparilla undoubtedly does, must be the means of preventing many diseases that would occur without its use. Sold by dealers.

A Vassar girl writes: "I haven't seen a man in a month of Sundays. We were out taking a 'constitutional' Saturday and came across a scare crow in a corn field. All the girls ran for it at once, and I only managed to secure a part of one of the skirts of its coats. Still, it was something."

Ella Wheeler, the recently married poetess, has already got up a reputation for the quick manner in which she adapted herself to Boston baked beans.

If you have any regard for your children's health, when they have a cold, don't give them anything but Shedd's Excelsior Cough Syrup.

He that controlleth his temper is greater than he who taketh a city, but a braver man than these is he who wears the first straw hat of the season.

The leading physicians of the country are using and prescribing Shedd's Little Mandrake Pills.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all throat and lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. A. NOYES, 149 Power's Block, Rochester, N, Y. 15-37-1yeow

The Rev. E. C. Hall, of Boston, gave a birthday party for his favorite dog last week, which was attended by a number of representative people. The dog sat at the head of the table with a napkin around his neck, lapped soup, licked buttered toast and crunched candy with marked dignity. It only made one break, and that was to kick a flea off of its jaw with its left hind foot.

Liver, Kidney or Stomach Trouble.

Symptoms: Impure blood, costive bowels, irregular appetite, sour belching, pains in side, back and heart, yellow urine, burning when urinating, clay-colored stools, bad breath, no desire for work, chills fever, irritability, whitish tongue, dry cough, dizzy head, with dull pain in back part, loss of memory, foggy sight. For these troubles "SWAYNE'S PILLS" are a sure cure. Box, (30 pills) by mail, 25 cts.; 5 for $1.00. Address, DR. SWAYNE & SON, Phila., Pa. Sold by druggists. 16 14 1y

"I can't pay that bill just now, you will have to wait a little for the money." "All right, sir," cheerfully responded the boy, as he seated himself and unfolded a copy of the morning paper. "Them's the orders of the boss." "What are the orders of the boss?" demanded the gentleman, sternly. "I'm to wait for the money."

London Hair Restorer—Great English.

Toilet article. Restores growth, color, gloss, and softness. Removes dandruff. Aristocratic families of Great Britain endorse it. Elegant dressing. Fragrantly perfumed. The favorite of fashion. At druggists for 3s 1½d, or 75 cts. in U. S. money. 16 14 1y

Dr. Woodbridge says that in the case of a bite of a venomods serpent or insect, one of the first things to be resorted to is to suck the wound with the lips. This is certainly a very simple remedy, and when a man is bitten in the back of the neck by a poisonous insect he should apply it immediately. He may twist his head entirely off in the effort to follow the prescription, but this is a minor consideration.

Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Consumption.

All throat, breast and and lung affections cured by the old-established "SWAYNE'S WILD-CHERRY." The first dose gives relief, and a cure speedily follows. 25 cts., or $1.00, at druggists. 16 14 1y

WARNER'S SAFE KIDNEY AND LIVER CURE

—The foliage was never more luxuriant than at present.

—The encampment of the G. A. R. will begin on the 16th of August and end on the 21st.

—Mr. W. P. Duncan, one of Philipsburg's substantial citizens, helped to swell the population of Bellefonte on Tuesday, the 17th.

—Ask Will Speer, of the Western Union, if he has found Jerry James. He had a long search for that individual on Wednesday.

—The Eagle Cornet Band at Curtin's Works will give a festival on Saturday, the 28th instant, to which they invite their friends.

—Prof. J. F. Davis, of Altoona, arrived in Bellefonte on Thursday and placed his beautiful chirography on the Bush House register.

—Photographer Finkbinder has recently improved the appearance of the reception room of his gallery by the addition of handsome lace curtains.

—Mr. McMillen, of the Brockerhoff House, will give the usual Alumni dinner at State College this year on Wednesday, June 25, at 12 o'clock. He always makes it a success.

—The electric light and telephone poles in all directions are not at all ornamental since the marks of age are blacking them. They should be painted some ornamental color.

—Mr. C. G. McMillen departed for Philadelphia on Wednesday evening to purchase cots and other necessary equipments for the Grand Army encampment in August. While absent, he also visited Cape May, Atlantic City and other summer resorts.

—Cards are now out for the wedding of Charles E. Pugh, General Manager of the Pennsylvania Railroad, to Miss Clara Jaggard, daughter of Mr. Clement Jaggard, of Altoona. The ceremony will take place in a few days.

—The merchants of Bellefonte are making war on the practice of keeping stores open so late in the evening. A majority of them have declared they will hereafter close promptly at 8 o'clock. They are still two hours behind Williamsport merchants.—Williamsport Sun and Banner.

—The Conference News alludes as follows to the M. E. church at Howard: "Brother Owen Hicks in his own enthusiastic and characteristic way is pushing his work on the Howard charge. The children's day programme was an excellent one and well rendered it was a good day for Methodism."

—It is rumored that the employes at the depot furnish Bailey with all the funny locals which appear in the News. There is no question about the boys being cute.—Democrat. The rumor is not correct as the employes at the depot have never furnished the person mentioned with a local of any character whatsoever. Guess again.

—We much regret to learn of the death on Monday, June 16, at 2:30 o'clock p. m. of Mr. Frank Shaffer, son of ex-Sheriff Shaffer, of Nittany Hall. The young man was about 15 years of age. He had been ill since February last and had suffered very much. The funeral took place Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock at Snydertown.

—A conflagration occured in Tyrone Tuesday night, the 17th, the Eagle Hotel being totally burned. It was quite a valuable property, but was unoccupied at the time. The fire started between 12 and 1 o'clock and was doubtless the work of an incendiary. There is an insurance of $5,500 on the burned building. The exact loss is not known at present.

—The first notices placed by the School Directors on the public school grounds, forbidding trespassing on the premises except by school children when the schools are in session, were destroyed. They have been replaced by other notices of the same kind, and any persons who feel inclined to destroy them are hereby warned that if they do so they may expect a call from Chief of Police Montgomery.

—On Wednesday a handsome buggy attached to which was a fine horse stood on High street, the horse being fastened to the post near Reynolds' Bank. There was no fly-net on the animal to protect it from the attacks of flies and other winged insects and it became restless. In some way one of the animal's feet became entangled with the hitching strap and down it fell. As a consequence, before it could be disentangled and elevated to its feet one of the shafts of the vehicle was broken. As Mr. John Bartruff appeared as if by magic on the scene at that time, we suppose all damages were quickly repaired.

A Meeting of the Borough Council.

On Monday evening, June 16, the regular meeting of borough council occurred with but a small attendance.

There were no verbal communications but a written communication signed by citizens of Water street asked for a street light near the Spring and another near the railroad. Referred to Street committee. A communication from Logan Hose Company inviting the council to participate in the Fourth of July celebration was accepted.

The Street committee made a report through Colonel Tate.

Mr. Shortlidge, on behalf of the Water committee, reported the work done on the large reservoir during the past two and weeks invited Mr. M. Cowdrick to report to council the information obtained by him in reference to reservoir. Some of the defects have been remedied. A motion was seconded and carried that the small reservoir be lined and the corners made oval.

Mr. Bartley made a report in behalf of the Fire and Police committee and was followed by Col. Tate on the same subject. The latter gentleman is in favor of having at least two efficient policemen, uniformed and giving their attention to every part of the town.

The Market committee reported $2.90 fees received through Market Clerk Shaughensey.

The Nuisance and Finance committees had nothing to report, the subject of the employment and salary of the police being, on motion, postponed until the next meeting.

A very exciting debate occurred in reference to enforcing the ordinance against the blowing of steam whistles within the borough limits. A special instance of violation of the ordinance was cited and a strong resolution of censure was offered, but, on motion, the adoption of it was postponed until the next meeting. All the members of the council are in favor of enforcing the ordinance now that it has been passed, although some doubt the expediency of the ordinance.

The members were reminded that there is an ordinance in force prohibiting the firing of fireworks on the Fourth of July.

The subject of the removal of the Undine Hose House from its present headquarters by the 1st of August was discussed, and, on motion, the Fire and Police committee were instructed to confer with the Undine House Company to discover what interest the borough has in the property of the company.

Death of Mrs. Cecelia Montgomery-Bullock.

The lady whose name is contained in the above title died on Monday afternoon, June 16, at 2:20 o'clock of consumption. She was the daughter of Mrs. Montgomery, who resides on Alleghany street. Mrs. Bullock whose maiden name was Cecelia Montgomery, was born in Columbia county, this State, in the year 1835, and she was at the time of her death in her 49th year.

When the subject of this notice was only two years old her parents came to this place; thus almost all of Mrs. Bullock's life has been spent in Bellefonte and she became well known to a large majority of the residents of the town. She was married on the 5th of June, 1862, to Mr. Chas. R. Bullock, of Delaware county. His death occurred fourteen years ago, leaving to her care three children who are still living and whose constant companionship and affection afforded her much comfort in her illness.

Her final sickness began on the 22d of February, and since that time she has been constantly growing weaker until the final moment of her earthly life arrived at the time above stated. She had been a member of the Protestant Episcopal church for many years and her death was very peaceful, her last moments being cheered by the full assurance of an implicit faith in Divine mercy and the presence of loving friends. It seemed but a step for her from earth within the gates of Paradise and it was taken with that perfect acquiescence in God's will so becoming his children. A widowed mother lives to look forward to the time when she shall be reunited to her daughter. Four brothers—all well known residents of Bellefonte—also survive to mourn their sister's departure.

The funeral took place on Wednesday at 5 o'clock p. m. from the Montgomery residence on Allegheny St.

—James Harris & Co. are about completing the work of putting an iron roof on the Bush House. The job is done in a workmanlike style and is much praised by Mr. D. G. Bush and others who have inspected it. It is very desirable to have durable, water-tight roofs on all buildings and it will be well for those who want work of this kind done to consult James Harris & Co.

A Steam Whistle.

MR. EDITOR: In regard to the steam whistle—that of the Phoenix Planing mill—which seems to be the most offensive one in the borough at the present juncture of human affairs, I have never heard it make a noise which is at all disagreeable, although for three years past I have regularly listened for it. Indeed, I know of many people who listen for it and during two or three days some time ago when it ceased for some reason much disappointment was expressed. It regulates the time and the breakfast, dinner and supper hours for many people whom I know of. I am acquainted with one lady who is such a bundle of nerves that she will not permit a parlor match to be brought into the house, because of the noise made in lighting a match of that sort and who is almost afraid to venture on the street alone, who nevertheless listens intently for the sound of this whistle and expressed much indignation when informed that the blowing of steam whistles was to be stopped. It is true that loud blowing of whistles and the escape of steam from the locomotives is an intolerable nuisance, but the whistle in question has never seemed to me at all disagreeable. Then, why is not a bell as disagreeable as a steam whistle, and why is it not as necessary to stop the ringing of church and school bells as to stop the moderate use of the steam whistle? I believe that the council should alter the ordinance passed by them some time ago, and should permit the owners of factories to call their men to work by means of a whistle blown moderately if they desire to. Then it seems to me that a railroad locomotive should be permitted to whistle loud enough to warn people to leave the track and thus save their lives. The ordinance should be directed against the loud and unnecessary blowing of the whistle and should prohibit entirely the blowing off steam from locomotives. But then I don't pretend to be wiser than the borough council and am ready to be convinced by pure, undefiled reason.

Respectfully yours,

AMICUS.

More Energy Wanted.

MR. EDITOR: Will you please tell us why it is that there is not more "get up" and "snap" among the Republicans in Bellefonte and Centre county. In all the cities and villages near us the Republicans have organized lively Blaine and Logan clubs while we have not heard of any initiatory proceedings of this kind having been taken in Bellefonte. The sooner such a club is organized the better it will be for the Republican party in this section. The Democrats are already giving their cause dead away. There was that stupid story told about Mr. C. H. Bergner, of Harrisburg, giving what he is represented to have said about the exhibition of two checks by one William H. Kemble in the Cincinnati convention, thus defeating Blaine for the nomination. Mr. Bergner has compelled the news editor of the Patriot to retract his infamous charges. Then there was that other false assertion about the Orangemen not being willing to support Blaine, also denied. There's lots of material, aside from the excellence of the candidates, to keep up the enthusiasm. The Democrats are trying to hang themselves with a thread; lets organize and give them a strong rope for the purpose. Where's Keller, Hastings, Ray, Dale, Milliken, Love, Beaver and all the other "big guns?" The boys are wild for Blaine and Logan. If they don't organize soon they will set a house afire. Yours,

READY TO BUST.

[We will be compelled to consult some of the Republicans on the subject before we answer; meanwhile shall urge our correspondent not to play the part of an incendiary.—ED.]

Meeting of School Board.

The Bellefonte School Board met on Tuesday evening the 17th, for the purpose of electing teachers to serve during the approaching school year. The election of teachers for the High School and also a principal was postponed until a future meeting. The other positions were filled as follows:

No. 2, Miss Meek; No. 3, Miss Hewes; No. 4, Miss Shortlidge; No. 5, Miss Humes; No. 6, Miss Rankin; No. 7, Miss McCaffery; No. 8, Miss Strickland; No. 9, Miss McGinley; No. 10, Miss Powers.

The only lady who retires from the list of teachers is Miss Kline and Miss McGinley is elected to fill her place. We are informed that Miss McGinley made an excellent record in Huntingdon where she taught last year and that she is a very capable teacher. That Miss Kline was not re-elected is, however, an occasion of great surprise. She is a highly meritorious teacher, and holds a certificate higher than is in the possession of any of the other teachers who do not possess professional certificates.

Fierce Battle With a Snake.

On Sunday, June 15, William Brennan, a son of Mr. Robert Brennan, of near Fillmore, went to the mountains accompanied by his dog. William is 12 years of age. The dog, which weighs about 60 pounds, is a powerful and intelligent animal and a pronounced foe to snakes. William heard a noise in the bushes near him, the dog pricked up his ears and before either of them had time to run an immense snake glided toward them. It was nine feet long and the size of an ordinary man's thigh. The snake was of the blowing viper species. It seemed uncertain which to attack first—the boy or the dog. William was unarmed and considered it advisable not to begin the attack. Urging the dog on, he concentrated the snake's attention on that animal and then procured a stout club. Meanwhile, the dog ran around the snake, keeping in constant motion, the snake never once giving the dog a chance to advance any nearer. The viper's head seemed to be swollen to twice its ordinary dimensions. This kind of warfare would doubtless have ended in favor of the snake. But William crept up near the snake and dealt it a tremendous blow on the head. Then the snake turned on its new foe. This was the dog's chance. Sinking its sharp teeth into the snake, it literally began to tear it to pieces. The boy continued to belabor it with the cudgel wherever he could find a spot to get in a blow. We are glad to learn that the fight soon ended in favor of the boy and dog, the immense viper lying dead on the ground. The snake was found to contain fifty-seven eggs as large as a pigeon's egg. This is the largest snake Mr. Brennan ever saw and both the boy and dog evidently distinguished themselves in giving fight to such a formidable reptile. Mr. Brennan related the facts to us on Tuesday, June 17, and will vouch for them in every particular.

Convention of the Constitutional Amendment Association.

The Constitutional Amendment Association met last week in Altoona. Believing that the part taken by the people of this vicinity in the proceedings will be interesting to our readers, we glean them as follows from the Altoona Tribune's report of Tuesday's session:

Col. D. S. Keller, the first Vice President, called the convention to order at 2:30 p. m. Rev. J. F. DeLong was made a member of the Committee on Resolutions. When the reports for the several counties were called for, Col. D. S. Keller read the report for Centre. The same gentleman also reported that Judge Krebs, at a recent session of court in Clearfield county, absolutely refused license to an applicant at Osceola (under the discretionary powers of the court) against whom no objections had been made and whose application and bond were regular and in accordance with the laws. If this case is carried to the supreme court the action of that body will be looked forward to with interest.

The benediction at the close of the afternoon session was pronounced by Rev. G. D. Penepacker.

In the evening Col. Keller responded on behalf of the convention to the address of welcome.

—The Reception Committee of the Y. M. C. A. met on Monday evening, June 16, and made important arrangements relating to the approaching festival on the 26th, 27th and 28th insts. It will be held on the third floor of the Centre County Bank building, the room being very large and well suited for the purpose. In the centre of the room will be a canopy beneath which an orchestra will be stationed to furnish music. Outside of this will be eight tables at which ice cream, cake, coffee and other refreshments will be served. There will be a space between the tables and the canopy for promenading and also a larger circle between the table and the walls of the room for the same purpose. It is probable that booths will be erected for the sale of Japanese ware which will be presided over by ladies appropriately costumed. The decorations will be tasteful and pleasing.

—We learn from the Lock Haven Democrat that on Saturday night, the 14th instant, as William Holmes, a resident of Nittany Hall, was returning home on horseback from the picnic at the Clintondale camp meeting grounds he fell from his horse and in falling his foot caught in the stirrup of the saddle. He was dragged nearly a hundred feet before the horse was stopped and had not a young man jumped from his buggy and stopped the horse it is probable he would have been killed. A doctor was summoned, who dressed the boy's wounds and it is thought no serious results will follow.

—Farmers will now make hay while the sun shines.

Echoes from Milesburg and Central City.

Since the nomination of Blaine and Logan, business about Milesburg and Boggs township is booming. Curtin's iron works are in full blast. The axe pole factory of J. F. Mann is running on full time. The Milesburg iron works are on repairs, getting ready for a fresh summer run on large orders. Wagner Bros. and J. Miles Green are doing a thriving business in flour and feed. The prospects for an abundant crop of hay and grain of all kinds were never better than at present.

We have had, during the last few evenings, several street parades by a few fantastics from Bellefonte on horseback. We would warn those parties to not ride so fast hereafter through our borough as our police are getting ready to arrest them.

Mrs. G. B. Meek, of Pine Grove, and Mrs. W. H. Musser, of Central City, left on Wednesday's 10 a. m. train on a visit to friends at Sunbury and Lewisburg.

Mrs. C. P. Stonerode and Mrs. R. J. Gibbs are on a trip to Pittsburg as delegates to the State convention of the "Ladies' Auxiliary" to the G. A. R. now in session at that place.

The Republicans of Milesburg and Boggs township are getting ready for a lively campaign this fall. We will roll up an increased majority for Blaine and Logan. M.

—Mr. B. B. Else, formerly of Milesburg and now of Florida, writes to his friends here about the fishing in the vicinity of his present home. Now, Mr. Else is a very conscientious man, and although he has been known to relate stories about fishing he never gives utterance to fish stories in the common acceptation of that term. Therefore, when he states in jet black ink that his neighbor caught a fish two feet and a half in length we are bound to believe him. He further states that the aforesaid neighbor struggled for some time on the banks of the stream with that big fish, but that the fish at length got away from him and is again disporting in its native element. Florida is a wonderful country for flowers and fish.

—The delegation of the W. C. T. U. of Bellefonte that went to Boalsburg on Friday evening, June 13, report that they had a very pleasant time and desire to return thanks to several persons for courtesies extended to them. Prominent among these are Christian Dale, Sr., Prof. Henry Keller, 'Squire Cramer and members of the Jack family. To the gentleman first mentioned, Christian Dale, Sr., who was unusually kind, they return special thanks.

—The Philipsburg Ledger has improved in appearance since its first issue and is so bright and entertaining as to suggest that it has provided itself with a fresh supply of spice.

Terms, $2.00 per annum in Advance

Local Department.

—New moon last Monday.

—The health of Bellefonters is excellent just now.

—It is time to announce excursions to the mountains and sea shore.

—An infant-in-arms attended the wedding Thursday evening and behaved in a model manner.

—Guess most of the Democrats wish that the hot work of making a presidential nomination was finished.

—Mrs. Adam Moore and Mr. Sam'l Winters, both aged residents of Millheim, are suffering with very severe illness.

—The editor of the Centre Hall Reporter is becoming a skillful trout angler and is never known to use a silver hook to capture his game.

—The picnic season is here and the young man with light pants has a brilliant opportunity to go to the woods and sit down on a big rhubarb pie.

—The organ grinder and the scissors grinder vie with each other in the number of pennies they can collect from people who need their services.

—John Brachbill's Sons have added telephone connection to the conveniences of their furniture warerooms and are prepared to take orders through it from San Francisco, or intermediate points.

—The individual who took the last issue of Puck from the reading room of the Y. M. C. A. is requested to return it at once and thereby avoid an unpleasant visit from Capt. Montgomery, chief of police.

—Major James P. Sayre, of the Second Brigade, will inspect Company I, in Bedford, on Monday, June 30. Colonel D. H. Hastings, of the Fifth regiment, will be with him on that occasion.

—The employes of Mr. Frank Stover's meat market varied the monotony of their work on Monday by adding an application of paint to the new awning recently erected in front of that establishment.

—H. H. Whitney, of Stormstown, this county, has made an excellent record the past year in Williamsport Dickinson Seminary. He took the second classical honor and secured the second prize for oratory.

—There was an enjoyable dance at Curt Taylor's house at Boiling Springs on Friday evening. About twenty persons from Bellefonte were in attendance, among whom was Mr. George Noll, the blind musician.

—Invitations are out for the marriage of Miss Virginia White, eldest daughter of General Harry White, to Harry A. Hitchcock, of Petersburg, Virginia, on the 26th of this month. Miss White is known in Bellefonte, having visited friends here.

—The Watchman of last week contains a picture of a new Flower recently discovered in New York State. It is evidently intended as an advertisement in the interest of some nursery. So far as its beauty is concerned, we prefer the sunflower or hollyhock any day.

—The ladies of the M. E. church announce that they will inaugurate a series of sociables, the first of which will be held at the parsonage on Spring street next Thursday evening. The members of the congregations and the friends are invited to be present.

—The funeral of Frank Shaffer, son of ex-Sheriff Benjamin Shaffer, of Nittany Hall, took place on Wednesday morning at 9:30 o'clock and was one of the largest ever known in Nittany Valley, over ninety carriages being in the funeral procession. Rev. S. E. Furst, of this place, assisted in the services.

—The Acme Base Ball Club went to State College on Saturday afternoon to play State College Club, No. 2. The game was called and the second inning was in progress when the rain descended so persistently as to stop the game with the Acmes far ahead of their adversaries.

—The festival to be given under the auspices of the Reception Committee of the Y. M. C. A. will be held only two evenings—Friday and Saturday, June 27 and 28—instead of three as has been announced. The Japanese Bazaar premises to be a feature of prominence and one of the reading rooms will be devoted especially to it.

Cupid's Pranks.

On Thursday evening the A. M. E. church of this place was filled with a very fine audience, about equally divided between the white and dark elements of Bellefonte's population. Among the Caucasians who were present were Messrs. E. C. Humes, Col. Tate, Wm. Humes, Jas. H. Rankin, George Harris and Judge Smith, most of whom were accompanied by the lady members of their households. Several of Bellefonte's lady school teachers were present eager to take lessons in the art of getting married.

The occasion which called these people together was the marriage of Mr. Jackson McDonald to Mrs. Thomazine Green. When the hour of 8 o'clock arrived the wedding party entered the church. The bridesmaid, Miss Graham, and the groomsman, Mr. Nelson, moved first up the aisle, Miss Graham turning to the left and Mr. Nelson to the right. Then came the bride and groom. The entire party turned when near the pulpit and faced the audience.

Rev. J. G. Clift occupied a position in front of the contracting couple and solemnly repeated the long marriage service. The bride and groom joined hands with intense earnestness during the ceremony. The service of that church seems to be a very secure one, and it is difficult to imagine how any persons united in such apparently indissoluble bonds can ever be severed.

The bride was dressed in what we thought to be a cream-tinted costume, but which a lady told us is a pure white. Anyway, it was very lovely and the lady who wore it with delicate orange blossoms in her hair was indeed a charming bride. Jackson, the groom, was lost in an ecstacy of happiness, and so engrossed in each other were they that the happy ceremony was like a pleasant dream to them. The bridesmaid is quite a queenly lady and looked surpassingly beautiful in blue, while Mr. Nelson was manly and good-humored in black.

After the ceremony many friends followed the party to the home of Mr. Graham, where the congratulations took place. We suppose, too, that supper was served, which was fit for a monarch's feast and that the presents were duly inspected and admired. With a profound courtesy we wish Mr. and Mrs. Jackson McDonald superabundant happiness and prosperity.

PRESENTS RECEIVED.

The happy couple received quite a large collection of presents as the following published list well attests:

Mr. and Mrs. Dr. Harris, china set and one castor; Mr. R. H. Nelson, castor; Mesdames Hazel and Shields, washing set, each; Miss Katie Harris and Adeline Harris, one chromo, each; Miss MacManus, one fruit dish; Mrs. E. Hoover, one vase; Mrs. J D Emory, fruit dish; Mr. and Mrs. Carter, one set of china; Mr. and Mrs. A V Jackson, set of glassware; Mr. and Mrs. J Williams, glass set; Mr. and Mrs. George Freeman, glass set; Mr. and Mrs. Mills, one fruit dish; Rev. Clift, card stand; Miss J Reynolds, one sugar spoon; Melissa Graham, of Lock Haven, one fruit dish; Mr. and Mrs. C Garner, 2 toilet covers; Mr. and Mrs. Butler, of Lock Haven, one-half doz. salts and one soup tureen; Mr. and Mrs. William Green, one-half doz. salts and one fruit dish; Mr. and Mrs. Bond, one castor; Mr. and Mrs. Taylor, one castor; Mr. Geo Sims, one mantel ornament; Miss T Graham, one mantel ornament; Mr. J Lewis, 1 set vases; Mr. and Mrs. A Brady, 1 set of glassware; May Gilmore, 1 teapot, 2 cups, 2 saucers and 2 plates; Miss A Lawson, napkins; K Miller, 1 glass tray; Miss Ida Molson, 2 linen pieces; Mr. and Mrs. E Molson, 1 linen piece; Mrs. M Johnson, one-half doz. desert dishes and 2 pieces of linen; Mr. and Mrs. Graham, 1 bed spread and 1 set of lunch napkins; Mr. and Mrs. B. Williams, 2 towels; Katie and Adaline Harris, 2 lunch cloths; Mr. and Mrs. L Penington, fancy match stand; Mr. E. C. Humes and son, 1 bedroom set.

—A gentlemaman who attended the State Constitutional Amendment Convention in Altoona speaks thus of it: "It was the most successful in point of numbers and in work accomplished and mapped out of any yet held. One thing was clearly demonstrated by this Convention, viz: the movement is bound to win. It has attained an impetus that will eventually be irresistible. We are out of debt, have some funds in the treasury, and can obtain more funds as we need it. We intend at the next session of the Legislature to ask for a respectful hearing, and to have a prohibition amendment submitted to the people. If our request is granted, well and good; if not, then we will do something else."

—Erysipelas in a very serious form is the disease which now afflicts Mr. John Meyers, a citizen of Boalsburg.

The Citizens' Cornet Band Festival.

Hundreds of people assembled on Saturday evening to participate in the closing exercises of the festival of the Citizens' Cornet Band of Milesburg, which began on Friday evening. Several other bands were also in attendance. Among the attendants from Bellefonte were those two eloquently-harmonious and harmoniously-eloquent gentlemen, Col. D. H. Hastings and J. L. Spangler, Esq. It was announced that the spirited contest for a beautiful gold watch had resulted in favor of D. B. Kunes, of Eagleville, who had received $270, his opponent for the prize, Mr. Al. Moore, receiving $110 for the same purpose. D. H. Hastings appeared to present the beautiful gift, as all supposed, to Mr. K., but caused some consternation when he remarked that because of the rivalry between Eagleville and Milesburg and also between the individual friends of Kunes and Moore he felt obliged to play the part of peacemaker and would present the watch to his friend, Mr. Spangler, who, he remarked, was in every way a first class gentleman and well deserved a gift of that kind. He further stated that to pursue this course would be only to follow out the usual custom of lawyers who divide the profits between themselves. He gave the various bands present some glowing compliments, and the Milesburg band has special cause to pride themselves on the Colonel's declaration that they can "blow" about as well as his friend Spangler, which is saying a great deal.

When Mr. Spangler arose to reply he succeeded in preventing the audience from mobbing both Hastings and himself by saying that he would not support the very reprehensible proposals of his friend Hastings. On the way from Bellefonte Hastings had proposed that in consideration of giving the watch to Spangler, he (Hastings) would demand one-half the value of the beautiful article in cash to put in his own pocket. He refused to become a partner to so vile a transaction and would present the watch to Mr. Kunes, and allow the friends of Moore to say and do what they please.

A beautiful prize cake was drawn by Miss Eva Calwell, who is visiting in Milesburg and by her it was presented to the Pleasant Gap band, and that organization can now say that it "took the cake," if not the entire bakery.

The entire affair was very successful and the proceeds amount to $501 16.

Musical Princeton Boys.

Bellefonte was highly favored Thursday evening by the presence in a grand concert of eight musical young men from Princeton College. They call themselves the Arion Glee Club. They are now on their way to their homes, after spending the past year in College, and are giving audiences en route the benefit of their musical genius. They are young, fine-looking fellows with budding mustaches and sweet, melodious voices. The audience that greeted them was quite large, considering that the night was the warmest of the season, and included the best people of the town. The programme presented was exceedingly choice, and and enabled those who engaged in the choruses to display their musical voices to perfection. Although perhaps no single voice showed evidence of extraordinary power or richness, several of them were very fine in quality and highly cultivated. Particularly noticeable in this respect was Mr. S. H. Leeper, Jr., of the class of '85; it is seldom that Bellefonte has heard a more cultivated tenor. Mr. G. E. Shea, as leader, was very proficient, and Mr. S. T. Carter, Jr., of the class of '86, thoroughly pleased the audience in his rendering of the "Warble" song.

Perhaps the most noticeable musical success of the evening was scored by the pianist, Mr. W. L. Nassau, in two instrumental selections, both of which were enthusiastically encored, the audience being well rewarded in each case by the obliging gentleman.

The concert was an artistic success throughout and was criticised in a very complimentary manner by the best musicians of the town. We can assure the people wherever this glee club appears that the entertainment they give is excellent in every respect.

—The local scribe of the Harrisburg Patriot, in describing the effect on the wearer of the new style gentleman's shoe which inclines inwardly, remarks: "He imagines he is pigeon toed when he first walks the floor, but of course he soon gets over that feeling." Of course, friend Patriot, we understand all about it. The "feeling" is naturally in his toes, and if he stands upright he can't help but get over it. Is that what you mean?

—Many lively people went to Milesburg on Saturday night to participate in the Citizen Band festival.

A Traveling Nuisance.

MR. EDITOR:—The quiet burghs of the county have lately been visited by a "one-horse" circus under the name of "Lee & Scribner's New York show," the men of whom are little less than a band of city scalawags. The numerous and fancy advertisements, more than half of which are not executed, draw, as is calculated, a large crowd of countrified youths and others desirous for a day of leisure.

On show day, about the first important feature to be noticed is a gambling stand in the form of the "ball and shell" game erected in some conspicuous position. The unsophisticated victim who tries his hand is allowed to be liberal and can bet any sum he wishes, but he soon walks off with an empty pocket and a fancied wiser head, for the cunning gambler, by a slight twist of his skillful hand, throws out only enough as bait to scoop in enough as game. This he gauges by the crowd's capacity for being humbugged.

A tolerably fair idea of these deluders can be conceived when we relate that in Unionville, on the 14th inst., after the evening performance, one of the principal actors, a lady, when going to the hotel, was so intoxicated that she actually fell from the sidewalk; then, staggering along the way, she at length, tumbled into the ditch and was helped therefrom by a sympathising citizen.

This wandering affair, as well as many others, is undoubtedly a disgrace to a civilized community, and authorities would do well to exclude such nuisances, which take away the laboring man's substance and scatter drunkenness in their train. ***

G. A. R. Notes.

The largest gathering of Grand Army posts that has ever been known in this section of the State will be held in Williamsport on July 4. Reno Post, No. 64, of that city, will begin a fair and festival on June 30, to continue until July 5. The Post has secured the big tent belonging to No. 261, of Milesburg, in which to hold the fair. The parade will take place on the 4th.

If 200 passengers can be secured from Bellefonte and vicinity, a special train will leave Bellefonte at 7 a. m. and return at 11 p. m. If, however, 200 cannot be secured the regular train will carry passengers for 2 cents per mile each way. Those having this privilege are not limited to the members of the G. A. R.; all can go.

In order that the number who will go may be known, word should be sent to any of the following gentlemen: H. H. Benner, Bellefonte; W. C. VanValin, Unionville; H. C. Holter, Howard; James McMullen, Milesburg; Austin Curtin, Roland.

The committee to make all necessary arrangements for the Grand Army encampment will meet in Gregg Post room Monday evening, July 7. It is hoped that all members of the committee will be in attendance. General Beaver is chairman. The encampment will begin August 16 and end on the 21st. Reception and parade on Saturday, the 16th.

A Shocking Tale from Milesburg.

It is not a flying rumor but a fact, and a very horrible one, that comes to us from Milesburg. Because of the shocking revelations connected with it and the embryotic condition in which the investigation is at present we will not give the names of the parties nor rake up the harrowing details.

Suffice to say, that in November, '83, a young man, who bears a respectable character, was married to a young women of Milesburg. While the husband was absent from home in February, '84, a child was born. It died and was buried about 18 inches deep under coal ashes in a stable, and was discovered only Friday. Words let fall by a sister of the woman caused the suspicion which resulted in the finding of the child.

A coroner's inquest was held on Friday by the following jury: P. H. Haupt, foreman, J. B. Proudfoot, J. H. Hahn, W. C. Grove, G. F. Derr, Adam Gingher.

The jury could not agree upon a verdict in reference to the cause of the child's death, and there the matter rests, it being in the hands of the district attorney. The affair created intense excitement in Milesburg on Friday.

—While Claude Linn, of Williamsport, was engaged in painting a house in Altoona on Friday, the 13th, the rope, which held the double ladder upon which he was seated, broke, and he was suspended for several minutes in the air, head downwards, in a position of great peril. Other workmen saw him and thus rescued him from what might have proved very serious injuries.

Personal Pencilings.

Dr. Allport, of Philipsburg, was in town on Thursday.

Hon. L. A. Mackey, of Lock Haven, visited Bellefonte Friday evening.

Miss Belle Kinports, of Hollidaysburg, is visiting friends in this place.

District Attorney Heinle is attending United States Court in Williamsport.

Mr. Clif. Thomas, of Jersey City, is spending a brief vacation at his parents' home in this place.

Worthy Master Leonard Rhone was noticed driving along Allegheny street Wednesday morning.

Dr. Jacobs, of Centre Hall, came to Bellefonte on Wednesday to attend the meeting of the District Board of Pension Examiners.

Hon. Samuel Reynolds, of Lancaster, on Sunday, enjoyed the elegant hospitality of his brother, Major Wm. F. Reynolds, in this place.

Col. D. S. Keller has again been elected one of the Vice-Presidents-at-Large of the State Constitutional Amendment Association.

Miss Emma Bross, a vivacious and accomplished young lady from the State Capital, is the guest of her friend, Mrs. H. C. Weaver, of Howard street.

Mr. Wm. R. Miller and family have returned from New York to their home at Sandy Ridge, after an absence extending through all the past winter.

Miss Minnie Brew, daughter of Mr. S. A. Brew, is at home after an absence in New Jersey extending through all the past Winter and Spring.

Miss Josie Cheeseman, of Washington, D. C., daughter of Major R. C. Cheeseman, formerly of this place, is visiting friends and relatives in Bellefonte.

Edwin Twitmire, of Zion, graduated from Franklin and Marshall College, in Lancaster, on Thursday, delivering an oration on "The Power of Self-Encouragement."

Masters Eddie and Arthur Valentine, sons of Mr. Abram Valentine, have returned from Baltimore where they have been attending school during the past winter and spring.

Dr. W. C. VanValin of Unionville, Post, G. A. R., inspected the post at Snow Shoe on Friday evening and performed the same duty for Gregg Post, Bellefonte, on Saturday evening.

Mr. Chas. F. Cook is home again from Louisville, Kentucky, where he attended a large Sunday-school convention. He considers Louisville one of the most beautiful cities he ever visited.

Mr. F. H. Ritter, of Altoona, was in town on Friday in the interest of the Tribune and the Sunday Morning, two excellent newspapers of that lively city, and certainly well represented by Mr. R.

Mr. John Kelley, of Unionville, father-in-law of Mr. Thos. Loughery, fell to the ground suddenly on Monday, the 16th, while at work in the garden. He died on Tuesday. The funeral occurred on Thursday. Deceased was 78 years of age.

Our friend, Mr. Walter Bayard, of Philipsburg, put in appearance in Bellefonte on Thursday morning and departed again Friday evening. He is enjoying excellent health and prosperity in that enterprising burg and is as cheerful and lively as of yore.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Geist, of Plainfield, Ill., are guests at the residence of Mrs. Jacob Weaver, on Howard street. They have resided in the West since 1848 and as this is their first trip to the East since that date they expect to tarry in this vicinity during all of this summer.

Mrs. A. C. Moyer, who has been delighting her relatives and friends during the past three weeks by her presence among them, departed on Wednesday afternoon for her home in Osceola. She is an extremely pleasing and attractive lady and is always enthusiastically welcomed when she comes to Bellefonte.

Mrs. Clem Dale, of this place, is spending a few days in Philadelphia, being called there on business relating to the furnishing of their new home on Willow Bank St. We sympathise with Clem. in thus being relegated so suddenly again to his former condition of bachelorhood and trust that the reunion to which he is looking forward may not be long delayed.

Our friend, Mr. Q. A. Daniels, has again packed his gripsack and Tuesday morning entered the 10 o'clock train for Williamsport, where he has accepted a position with Greevy & Snyder, plasterers and paper hangers. We have no doubt "Q. A." will enjoy himself in the beautiful Lumber City and we take pleasure in recommending him to the citizens of that place as an upright, industrious gentleman, a desirable acquisition in any capacity or among any people.

A Social Gathering.

The beautiful Linn street residence of Mr. F. W. Crider, Friday evening, was the scene of a very pleasant social gathering, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. North, the parents, Mrs. Jacobs, a sister, and Mrs. Burrows and daughter, cousins of Mrs. Crider. Mr. A. O. Furst and lady, Mr. John P. Harris and lady, Mr. Johnston and lady, Mrs. Rhoads, Miss Laurie, Mr. S. D. Gray and others were present. The evening was spent in agreeable conversation, music and games in which the elder gentlemen and ladies joined to the evident relish of the young folks. Refreshments were served in the grounds in the rear of the residence, the whole being lighted by Chinese lanterns, which added greatly to the attractive features of the entertainment. Mrs. Harris, Mrs. Jacobs, Mrs. Crider, Miss Lyon and others contributed to the pleasure of the evening, with vocal and instrumental music. The entertainment was in every way creditable to the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Crider.

—The Logan Hose Company held a special meeting in their hose house on Thursday evening, and reported two more acceptances received from companies to whom invitations had been sent to participate in the Fourth of July celebration. They are the Reliance Hose Company of Philipsburg and Hope Hose Company of Lock Haven. Each of these companies will be accompanied by a band. Seven companies have accepted to date and four of them will be in Bellefonte on the evening of Thursday, the 3rd, when a parade will take place and a beautiful pyrotechnic display will be given. It is again in order to remind the citizens who are desirous of making the event a success that further contributions of money will be acceptable. The Logan Hose boys deserve all that the citizens can do for them in this respect and it will be a great satisfaction to them to have every arrangement made to ensure this result.

—J. L. Spangler, Esq., delivered one of the speeches before the Alumni of Williamsport Dickinson Seminary during the dinner given by that organization on Wednesday evening, the 18th. The Sun and Banner thus refers to it: "We Seniors," was the third toast and J. L. Spangler, Esq., of Bellefonte, replied to it with ready wit as he parred his defensive strokes against those of his opponent, Mr. Opp. His allusions to the tricks of the past called forth hearty applause (no doubt from sympathy), while his allusions to the eminence to which his fellow seniors had arisen, and were rapidly rising, were worthy of the man who spoke them."

Wedding Bells.

KEPLER—SNYDER.—At Boalsburg, on Sunday, June 15, by Rev. Mr. Creamer, Mr. W. E. Kepler, of Altoona, Pa., and Miss Annie B. Snyder, of Snow Shoe Intersection.

Mr. Kepler is a very fine young man and has recently been associated with Mr. Garman of this place in the purchase and sale of Canadian horses. The lady to whom he is wedded is held in high esteem and will make make Mr. K. an excellent wife. We wish them much joy. The happy couple are now in this place. [Altoona papers are requested to notice the above.]

—We are informed that the Chief Burgess of Bellefonte has the prerogative of appointing sixteen policemen from among the citizens of the borough and they are compelled to serve or pay a fine. He can continue to appoint until he has the necessary number. We do not believe there are many citizens in Bellefonte who, if appointed, would decline to serve. As the police thus appointed would not receive any salary, it would be a measure of economy.

—Dun's mercantile agency of Williamsport thus reports the business situation of Bellefonte: "Merchants complain of dullness of trade, but all our industries, such as forges, furnaces, glass and nail works, etc., are running on full time, with plenty of orders. The crop prospects are excellent, for all grain and seeds except clover, which will be a failure. The business outlook so far as this community is concerned, is good.

—Two departments of the Y. M. C. A. are requested to meet next Monday evening at 8:15 o'clock, in the Association rooms, viz: the Reception Committee and the Woman's Auxiliary. Every member of each of these committees is requested to be present.

—Sweeter, more cultivated or more harmonious male voices were never heard in Bellefonte than those of the Arion Glee Club on Thursday evening.

MARRIED.

BECK—DERSTINE.—In Bellefonte, Pa., June 18th, 1884, by Rev. R. Crittenden, Mr. William L. Beck, of Tyrone, Pa., and Miss Margaret Derstine, of Bellefonte, Pa.
